The President's Trip Business, Also Perhaps Old Guard Surrenders Have It, and Tell It

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

The President leaves on a 12,000-mile trip to Buenos Aires and return. After addressing the opening session of the Pan-American Peace Conference, he will return, probably breaking records for the trip, by water.

Fortunately, he is going to South America, not to Europe, the country has an unpleasantly distinct recollection of Woodrow Wilson's trip to Europe and what it cost.

Possibly President Roosevelt undertakes this long journey, not entirely occupied with thoughts of war or peace, since there is no danger of any United States war with anybody on either American continent.

Better Business may also be in his mind. European countries for good reasons seek to stir up ill feeling against this country among our South American neighbors. That should be difficult to do after the President has talked to them face to face; and it ought to be impossible, if he should also talk to all of them by radio.

The fact that the insurgents, representing Christianity, brought the Moors to kill their fellow Spaniards, would not surprise Spain's national hero, the Cid. He fought in bloody civil wars, among Christians, and sometimes fought with the Moslems against this or that Christian-Spanish group—truly a distressful country.

Senator Capper of Kansas passed across the November 3 maelstrom, safely reached the far side and returns to the Senate one of six surviving "old guard Republicans," and the survivors are not so very Republican, with one exception.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, who ran as an independent, is one survivor with Senator Borah, dean of the Senate, and Senator Hiram Johnson, who supported Roosevelt in 1932, and because of illness said little this time.

Senator Hale of Maine, who was lucky enough to run two years ago, is the only genuine Republican old guard left, the others, thirty-odd, having been killed off within ten years. The "more or less Republican" survivors, Capper, Norris, Borah, Hiram Johnson and the Senate Republican leader, Senator McNary, will think seriously about building a new Republican party before 1940 comes along, with another whirlwind.

When beer and whiskey came back, arm and arm, legally, came said "farewell to soft drinks, their day is done.

At that time with prohibition dead, R. W. Woodruff, head of the Coca Cola Company, informed this writer that he did not agree with the sad prognostication.

"If you have what the people want," said he, "and the people know that you have it, you need not worry; there is room for everybody in America."

Yesterday, Mr. Jones, of "Coca Cola," sent the interesting information that Mr. Woodruff had told the board of directors that his company in the three months ending last September 30, earned net, with all reserves for taxes, $8,931,315.36, or $2,600,000 more than in 1935.

In consequence of this joyful news the company will celebrate its 50th anniversary this year by giving an extra month's salary to each of its employes, and an extra dividend of two dollars a share to the widely scattered holders of its four million shares of common stock.

It is true, as Mr. Woodruff says, "If you first know what the people want, and then let them KNOW that you have it," the rest is simple; but you must HAVE it, and let the people KNOW you have it.

Herr Von Ossietzky, locked up for pacifism more than three years ago, and just released from a Berlin hospital, in which he was held prisoner, went through the World War, is 47 years old now, was a leader of the "no-more-war" movement. His health was undermined by concentration camp hardships, and he is not expected to live long to enjoy his Nobel Prize money. He may comfort himself with a line, inspired by Milton's blindness, "They also serve who only stand and wait." As for the "no-more-war" movement, that must be patient also.

WINS $500,000 ESTATE

DORCHESTER WOMAN GETS RICH LEGACY

Mrs. Frank Keller of 22 Verdun street, Dorchester, has established full claim to the $500,000 estate of her uncle, Gen. A. M. Kuropatkin, once commander-in-chief of Imperial Russia's 5,000,000-man army, it was learned today.

Mrs. Keller's son, John K. Chapel, Omaha radio announcer, made the announcement in the Nebraska city. He and his mother have been in America since 1919.

General Kuropatkin, who died in 1925, was known as one of Russia's greatest soldiers, despite a series of staggering cabl disbursing defeats in his later years.

BRILLIANT CAREER

After a brilliant early career, which saw him distinguish himself on every front of the far-flung Russian empire, General Kuropatkin became Russian chief of staff when he was still under 50 years old.

Then, thanks to corruption within the army, poor supply facilities and low morale among both officers and men, the Muscovite military juggernaut met with disaster after disaster in the Japanese war in 1905.

General Kuropatkin, who had struggled in vain against impossible conditions which later exposed in a series of memoirs was removed from command, and was subsequently governor of Russian Turkestan.

LOST TO HINDENBURG

Retiring a few years later, the general was called back to service to lead the Russian forces on the Prussian front in the World War, but his luck had not changed. At first fairly successful, General Kuropatkin's forces were shattered by German troops commanded by Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who, like Kuropatkin, had been called back from retirement to fight.

Thereafter General Kuropatkin dropped from sight, except for one report in 1921, when he was declared by the Bolshevik government for refusing to lend his name to Soviet propaganda.

His death was announced by the Soviet government in 1925, six years after his sister, Mrs. Krolec, and her son had come to the United States.

JOB SHIFTS DELAYED, CURLEY ILL AGAIN

Governor Curley, unable to shake the cold which struck him down during his campaign for Senator, was again confined to bed today at his home in Jamaicaway.

Returning from a rest on Cape Cod Monday night, the governor was expected at his office at the State House today, but word was sent that he had been ordered by Dr. Martin English to remain in bed.

As the governor's absence speculation was rife as to the possible successor to Morgan McSweeney, clerk of the Salem district court, who died Monday.

Disclosure was made that Mich

Once this was a little white-washed village chapel where simple peasants worshipped. Now it is but a wrecked shell, pillaged by God-hating Communist militia as they fled before the advancing Fascist armies. The wonder of it all is that the simple statue of Christ survived the vandalism, but here is how the Insurgent army of General Franco found it—almost as if the Christ were praying for His enemies as He did in life. Soldiers who occupied this church on the outskirts of Madrid wondered how the holy image could have just escaped bludgeon and bullets, shot and shell. The cross beneath it was splintered, the baptismal font on the left split, the pictures torn from their frames, the walls pitted with shrapnel holes. But the Christ still prayed in the ruins.

War's Furious Fire Fails to Harm Image

WAR PERIL SPREADS; RUSS CALL PARLEY

BULLETINS

Moscow, Nov. 18 (INS)—Stunned by the joint Italo-German recognition of the Spanish rebels, high officials of the Soviet foreign office called an immediate conference today to decide Russia's course. In particular they had to decide Russia's future attitude toward the non-intervention committee, whether any further cargo vessels would be dispatched to Spain, and what attitude would be adopted in the event a blockade of the Spanish coast is attempted to keep out Russian vessels.

The officials also pondered whether the matter should be called to the attention of the League of Nations.

London, Nov. 18 (INS)—Formal recognition of the Spanish rebels by Italy and Germany struck Britain like a bombshell today. The foreign office stated it had absolutely no advance indication such a move was forthcoming. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden called an immediate conference of his aides.

The Soviet embassy spokesman issued a statement saying:

"We have been expecting such action by Italy all along. It may mean collapse of the non-intervention committee. It may mean anything.

"The immediate peace of Europe depends upon whether Italy refrains from unbridled shipment of arms to the rebels."

In foreign office circles it was deemed unlikely the attitude of the British government would be affected by the Italian and German action. Britain's stand remains one of strict non-intervention, it was said.

Rome, Nov. 18 (INS) — Italy and Germany today openly threw in their lot with the Spanish rebels, jointly extending official recognition to the insurgent regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, whose armies have encircled Madrid.

The move means the two nations immediately feel free to ship arms and munitions openly to the rebels in Spain.

Both countries now hold the non-intervention pact, which for many weeks has prevented 27 European nations from aiding either side openly, a dead agreement.

TECHNICALLY "AT WAR"

Both Italy and Germany are recalling their diplomatic representatives to the Leftist government, which now has headquarters at Alicante.

The Italian fleet in the Mediterranean, in a "state of alarm" for weeks, tonight was believed ready to steam into position to effect a blockade of the Catalonian coast of Spain against any Russian arms shipments.

Technically Italy is "at war" with the Spanish Leftist Republican government as a result of severing diplomatic relations with it.

FOLLOWS PORTUGAL'S ACTION

Recognition by Italy and Germany, following a similar move by Portugal, has been expected for some time, but it had been believed Rome and Berlin would

Red Sox Spending Spree All Over Says Yawkey

Millionaire Tom Yawkey's spending spree, in the interests of better baseball in Boston, is over.

Yawkey said to himself, today, he said he already had spent $3,500,000 in the Red Sox.

He doesn't intend to let the fans down, but will look for good swapping propositions instead of lavish buying of stars. The Sox will no longer be platinum-plated, but will be fine-spun gold, if Yawkey's plans produce.

The popular magnate also indicated that Wes Ferrell's $25,000 fine had been cancelled and Wes won't be traded unless another 20-game pitcher can be obtained in his place.

GIVES FOOT FOR LIFE

Trapped, Leans From Train's Path

Hyannis, Nov. 18—Struggling furiously to free his left foot, caught tightly in a switch, James Martin, 40, heard a train approaching and his heart sank.

Despite the cold, beads of perspiration battled his forehead as he made one last frantic effort to free himself as the train appeared rounding a curve.

Martin then knew his last chance was gone, but he did not surrender his life.

Summoning up all his strength and courage, he leaned far over, straining every muscle, and fell in a heap as the locomotive roared by, severing his foot at the ankle.

The heavy freight train thundered past, as he lay in a daze. Gradually the pain overcame him and he swooned.

That was late last night. After daylight laborers discovered him, semi-conscious by the trackbed. Revoving as they ran up to him, Martin pointed, saying:

"You'll find my foot over there."

In spite of loss of blood, he was conscious when carried into Cape Cod Hospital here. Surgeons said he had an even chance, due more than anything else to his courage and amazing vitality.

Martin is an employe of the New Haven railroad and was walking home through Sandwich when his foot became caught in the "frog."

He has been making his home in a box car on a siding while working in this section of the railroad line.

The train that struck him was the night freight from Cape points and he swooned.

TUGWELL RESIGNS, OTHER 'NEW DEALERS' DUE TO GO

'BRAIN TRUST ERA' ENDED; MISS PERKINS NEXT?

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 18—A resignation that may mark the beginning of a big parade, involving cabinet officers and other familiar faces in the New Deal (first phase), stirred the capital today.

Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell, under secretary of agriculture, resettlement administrator, and one of that small group frequently and slightingly referred to as "the brain trusters," has submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt.

Some others are expected between now and the time Mr. Roosevelt begins his second administration on January 20.

Long a storm center in and out of administration circles, as well as the "whipping boy" for the opposition during the past campaign, Tugwell sent his resignation to Mr. Roosevelt shortly before The latter left on his South American cruise, leaving it to the President to determine when it shall become effective.

FARLEY MAY BE NEXT

It has not yet been accepted, but the expectation is that it will be, for Tugwell has accepted an executive position with the American Molasses Co.

Jim Farley, the political Elijah who organized the New Deal's victory in the election, and who is now on leave of absence as Postmaster General, already has made arrangements to quit. Like Tugwell, Farley feels he has to get out of government service "to make a living."

The capital will be surprised if Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, the only woman to ever hold a cabinet post, and Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, do not follow the resignation trail between now and Jan. 20. Another cabinet vacancy already exists in the War Department although temporarily filled by Harry H. Woodring of Kansas.

ENDS "BRAIN TRUST"

Other Cabinet posts are regarded as more or less acceptably filled, barring unforeseen circumstances. There have been rumors that Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings would retire and take up the post for which he was originally slated, in the Philippines, but those rumors have never been confirmed.

Tugwell's departure marks the well-nigh complete breakup of that small group which early in the administration gained the contemptuous cognomen of "The Brain Trusters." With Raymond Moley, long since retired and now a somewhat critical commentator upon the New Deal from his vantage post in a magazine chair, Tugwell was the center of a swirling storm of criticism, almost from the outset of the Roosevelt administration.

He was credited, along with several other comparatively youthful academicians (and wrongly, too, according to the highbrows) with exerting great influence upon the legislative trends of the New Deal's hectic days.

TUGWELL CHIEF TARGET

Events have since proven that Mr. Roosevelt acted largely on his own chief "brain trusting" in the shaping of such legislation, but the name and the impression became firmly lodged in the public mind and there it stuck.

New Deal critics made the rather shy and retiring Tugwell a target for their shafts. Tugwell's classes with prominent administration figures in those stormy early days gave the opposition plenty of ammunition, as did some of his earlier writings on economic subjects, while he was still professor at Columbia University. They dug up everything he had ever written and confronted him with it. One thing in particular was used relentlessly—a rather sophomoric poem which Tugwell had written years before that contained the line: "I will roll up my sleeves and re-make America."

When Mr. Roosevelt wished upon Tugwell the job of being resettlement administrator which involved radical experimentation in the shifting of people from worn-out lands to new home sites, the "I will roll up my sleeves and remake America" seemed to acquire particular point.

BATTLE WITH PEEK

One of Tugwell's earlier and most publicized clashes was with George N. Peek, then administrator of the now defunct triple A. Tugwell was author-secretary of agriculture, Peek subsequently retired to become head of the Export-Import Bank, an agency devoted to fostering increased foreign trade.

In that post, Peek clashed head-on with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, which resulted eventually in Peek's retirement from the administration. In the last campaign, Peek supported Governor Alfred M. Landon and became one of the administration's severest critics.

Then it was the "Wirt incident" that gave Tugwell his greatest notoriety. Dr. William Wirt, Gary, Ind., schoolmaster, visiting in Washington, was a dinner guest in Washington one night where a number of youthful administration assistants were also guests. He listened to their conversation and later went away to surprise and shock the country with the announcement that a radical revolution was brewing in Washington, and that the "Brain Trusters" were behind it. He said they had described President Roosevelt as "only the Kerensky" of the coming American revolution, a stop-gap before the real thing.

Congress gravely took cognizance of the charges and conducted an investigation in which Dr. Wirt repeated his tale, and Dr. Tugwell and his friends explained their version of it all. It appeared from the testimony they had been "ribbing" the Gary schoolmaster. Mr. Roosevelt ended it all with his quip about Congress "going from bad to Wirt."

Tugwell Goes to Wall St.; Branch House in Boston

New York, Nov. 18 (INS)—From the "brain trust" to Wall Street.

That is the step which Rexford G. Tugwell, regarded as the New Deal's No. 1 brain truster, is taking, it was learned today following announcement in Washington of Tugwell's resignation.

Charles William Taussig, president and chairman of the board of American Molasses Company of New York, announced Tugwell would become associated with the $3,500,000 corporation as executive vice-president about January 1.

Taussig was one of the original "Brain Trusters" as was A. A. Berle, Jr., city chamberlain of New York, who has been associated with the company as a director for several years. Berle today is en route with the President to Buenos Aires.

Seventy-five years old, the company operates plants in New York, New Orleans, Wilmington, N. C., Boston and Montreal.

CURLEY ILL, JOB SHIFT DELAYED

This caused a stir in political circles, where Sullivan's candidacy was taken very seriously. Sullivan was very active at the convention and at Democratic state headquarters all through the campaign and may be considered in line for some such reward.

Another possibility is William G. Hennessey of Lynn, Democratic member of the Governor's Council, who was defeated for re-election.

Frank Pedonti, of the Governor's secretarial staff, is desirous of getting the appointment, it was learned, although Pedonti lives in Boston. He is studying law and is under the special tutelage of John P. Feeney.

An early appointment is expected. McSweeney was clerk of the Salem court for 24 years and was a brother of State Senator William H. McSweeney, a leading Essex County Republican.

The Governor's Council meets tomorrow to receive several appointments from the hands of the Governor and to conduct a public hearing on Dr. Winifred Overholser, whom Governor Curley wishes to replace as head of the Department of Mental Diseases.

Members of the Massachusetts Medical Association requested this hearing. Meanwhile, the Council has held up confirmation of Dr. David Williams of Jamaica Plain to succeed Dr. Overholser.

Among appointments to be submitted, it is understood, is that of Dr. Edward H. Ewing of Stoughton to succeed Dr. William O. Faxon as medical examiner. The latter has announced his desire to retire after serving for 42 years.

Fighting Blaze at City Point

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Firemen worked for more than two hours in freezing temperatures early today before they brought this stubborn blaze under control at the White Fuel Company plant at City Point, South Boston. Water is being played on the three-alarm fire from hoses of one of the two fireboats called to the scene. Damage caused by the flames was estimated at $60,000.

Auto Rate Cut Hearing Opens

Attorneys for stock insurance companies today began presenting data to William H. Hitchcock, master, in their fight for higher compulsory auto rates than those set by Insurance Commissioner Francis J. DeCelles.

Hitchcock, who is secretary of the bar examiners, was appointed master in the insurance case by the Supreme Court and he began holding the hearings in the room used by the full bench of the high court. The hearings are expected to last for several weeks.

The companies, represented by Judge Frederic H. Chase and Raymond F. Baldwin, contend Commissioner DeCelles promulgated the 1937 rates prematurely, ignoring data prepared by them and by the Massachusetts Rating Bureau.

The insurance commissioner is defending his rates himself, with the aid of Henry P. Fielding and Roger Clapp, assistants to the attorney-general.

'Army of Wildcats' Facing Nimrods

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Nov. 18 (AP)—Game Warden Wendell Pike said today deer hunters would have to "battle their way through an army of wild cats" when the hunting season opens Saturday in Vermont.

He said the cats were never more plentiful and those already killed weighed between 15 and 40 pounds. The state pays a $5 bounty for them.

St. Francis Fair

Alderman Allen Roy Kingston of Ward 6 will represent Mayor Leslie E. Knox of Somerville at the fair of St. Francis Church, Union square, tonight.

$0. BOSTON FIRE LOSS $60,000

Fire caused by a spark igniting the wooden framework of a coal conveyor at the White Fuel Company plant at City Point, South Boston, today, ripped through a quarter mile of the structure, causing $60,000 damage.

Fanned by a strong wind, the flames spread over a large section of the huge structure, threatening to engulf the entire plant and causing Acting Deputy Fire Chief Daniel Martell to order second and third alarms sounded.

Sparks were carried by the wind to the nearby City Point barns of the Boston Elevated Company, and firemen were forced to battle fiercely to prevent an outbreak of the blaze there.

Some 50 trolley cars were hustled out of the barns by employes when it appeared the flames would spread there but quick action by firemen prevented any damage.

Two fire boats were hurried to City Point to aid in fighting the blaze from the water side.

After battling for nearly two hours, firemen brought the fire under control.

Denhardt Defense Plea Rejected

New Castle, Ky., Nov. 18 (AP)—County Judge A. S. Morgan denied today the application of counsel for Brigadier-General Henry H. Denhardt, accused of killing Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, for a writ to compel the prosecution to turn over to the defense for examination all exhibits in the case.

The ruling followed arguments of Denhardt's attorneys that they were entitled to see the exhibits in preparation of the defense case for the examining trial scheduled for Friday.

The defense then moved that the examining trial in county court here be postponed two days.

Vet Seized Near King Edward

Boyerton, Wales, Nov. 18 (AP)—King Edward's alert hodygurard today seized a middle-aged former soldier who placed a hand on the monarch's arm in the course of his trip to the Welsh mining areas.

The old soldier, who gave his name as Thompson, said he wanted to talk to the king about his wartime experiences in France.

The royal hodygurard, keyed up since the parade of last July when a man threw a loaded pistol at the feet of Edward's horse, rushed the man away.

The king, seemingly unperturbed, continued his tour of inspection of the poverty-stricken areas.

Thompson explained:

"I only wanted to remind his majesty that when he first landed in France during the war I was a member of his first guard of honor. I was hoping to have a chat with him about it. I am sure he would be interested."

The officers then released Thompson, who rejoined the crowd cheering the king.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD

While the King drove through the town of Dinas, in this land of silent coal pits and brave efforts for reconstruction, a 75-year-old woman, Mrs. E. Jones, collapsed from the excitement and died.

With his party, the King partook of a luncheon of sandwiches at Pentrebach, after passing through Hafod, where a few men held aloft a board emblazoned in crude letters with the words:

Means Test . . . Help Us, Our Noble King."

(The controversial Means test is that which is applied to the qualifications of dole-seekers).

TASTE FOR LEEKS

The King disclosed a royal taste for the odorous leek, Welsh national idiot, while inspecting the farms in this area.

Seeing bunches of leeks, first cousins to onions, placed on an arch to dry, the King told a farm manager:

"You can arrange to send some of these to London for me. I am fond of them."

Later, the King received first-hand information on life in southern Wales from the veteran, J. Dalton, who, in reply to Edward's questioning, said he was making 30 shilling and six pence (about $7.60) a week.

"It doesn't leave very much, does it?" asked the King, after Dalton had added he paid three shillings a week for coal and two shillings six pence for electric light, in addition to two shillings for insurance.

"No sir, and very often we have to sit in the dark because we can't afford the half-crown a week for electric light," Dalton replied.

Sees $920,000,000 Yule Store Sales

Washington, Nov. 18 (INS)—Christmas department store sales this year are expected to exceed $920,000,000, the greatest volume since 1929, Secretary of Commerce Roper announced today after making a survey of retail outlets in the nation's leading cities.

ROOSEVELT URGES INDUSTRY TO HIRE 'MEN OVER 40'

Washington, Nov. 18 (INS)—President Roosevelt today made a vigorous appeal to industry to hire more older men—those over 40 years of age—and of unskilled workers to speed solution of the unemployment problem.

In a statement issued from the White House after he had departed for South America the chief executive painted an optimistic picture of the unemployment situation, and praised industry for "an increasing spirit of mutual helpfulness, and of recognition of the fact that the way to end unemployment relief is to give work," but nevertheless called attention to a factor that is impeding still greater progress in re-employment.

He pointed to the fact that many large industries will not employ men over 40 and that unskilled workers also have not participated in the general business revival as have other groups.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Re-employment has been increasing rapidly during the last year, and reports from industry are to the effect that further gains in employment can be expected during the coming year.

Unemployment relief has reflected this improvement in employment. From the peak of 5,316,000 unemployed families and single persons in January, 1935, the number declined 28 per cent to August, 1936.

Despite this decline a large number of unemployed remain on the WPA and other governmental agencies.

These workers are to a large extent unskilled and a disproportionately large number are older workers—40 years and over.

"EXTEND OPERATIONS"

In the relief message to Congress on March 18, 1936, I asked private business "to extend its operations so as to absorb an increasing number of unemployed." Many private businesses are responding—but much remains to be done.

This problem will, I hope, be recognized by industry. It is widely known that many of the largest industries will not hire workers over 40 years of age. To a large extent this policy is responsible for the relatively large number of older workers on relief.

It is to the best interests of industry to recognize its responsibility, not only by substantially increasing employment but by employing those in groups where many are now supported by public funds.

In the relief message of March 18, 1936, I stated that "only if industry fails to reduce substantially the number of those now out of work will another appropriation and further plans and policies be necessary."

Obviously, industry has not yet increased its employment sufficiently to permit the government to withdraw its aid to the unemployed.

UP TO INDUSTRY

The relief estimate and plans for the fiscal year 1938 will be made known later. It is as true now as it was last March, when I stated:

"The ultimate cost of the federal works program will . . . be determined by private enterprise. Federal assistance . . . can be terminated if industry itself removes the underlying conditions."

'Labor Security Progress Formula'—Miss Perkins

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 18 (AP)—A national living wage, continuity of income, stability of employment, reasonable profits and "guidance for the conservation and maximum utilization of natural resources" were named today by Secretary of Labor Perkins as comprising a formula for progress.

Speaking before the American Federation of Labor, Miss Perkins said, however, that labor's interests cannot be attained by legislation alone.

"A strong union movement is essential to the development of labor standards," the secretary declared. "Union organization gives strength and practical wisdom to the formation and enforcement of legislative programs."

Roosevelt Sails For South America

By GEORGE E. DURNO

Aboard U. S. S. Chester, Roosevelt Flotilla, Nov. 18 (INS)—President Roosevelt shoved off from native shores today for a month-long goodwill jaunt to South America, leaving behind him a second message of thanks to the American people for the enthusiastic manner in which they supported his re-election.

Just before stepping aboard the cruiser Indianapolis, which will carry him 7000 miles south to Buenos Aires for the opening of the inter-American conference on December 1, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I desire once more to thank the American people for their messages of congratulation and good will which I have received since election day.

"Those messages have poured in literally by the thousands, first at Hyde Park and later at Washington. They long since assumed a total which has made it impossible for me to undertake personal acknowledgment and their mounting number makes any individual answer a physical impossibility."

Full naval honors were extended to the President as he boarded the Indianapolis shortly after eight a. m. in Chaleston, S. C., harbor.

VOTE ON "WALLY"; BRIDAL HIT IN U.S.

TWO NATIONS STIRRED

On both sides of the Atlantic interest in the reported romance between Mrs. Wallis Simpson and King Edward VIII stirred widely varied feelings. In Washington, one Congressman cast aspersions. In London, a "straw vote" of sentiment was taken.

Straw Ballot on King's Wedding

By DAVID P. SENTNER

Copyright, 1936, International News Service

London, Nov. 18 — Eighty per cent of the rank and file of England's population is not opposed to King Edward's marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, if the results of a miniature "straw vote" taken today can be accepted as a true indication of public sentiment.

One hundred English subjects encountered in "pubs," buses, offices, shops, cocktail bars, tea parties and clubs were questioned. The majority were of the masses but nobility, society and the military service were included.

In general, the sobering classes were found to be highly favorable toward the marriage.

FEAR FOR ROYAL LINE

Opponents of the king were found to be less concerned over the fact Mrs. Simpson is a commoner and an American than over her two divorces. In addition, they expressed fear the royal succession might be affected.

The most bitter opposition to a royal, however, that the nation would accept the marriage graciously. Here are a few typical comments:

A NURSEMAID: "The King does his job and does a good job. What he wants to do in his private life is not for the likes of us to say."

A BUS-DRIVER: "Life begins at forty, even for a king."

AN ARMY OFFICER: "He is a modern king in these modern times. It will be the best thing for England if he breaks with tradition."

A HOUSEWIFE: "The marriage will cause the Church of England to revise its old-fashioned attitude regarding divorce."

A DEBUTANTE: "When he was Prince of Wales they called him a playboy. Now he wants to settle down and a group of Tories are still kicking."

LIFE TOO PUBLIC

A CHARWOMAN: "It will be good for trade."

A FORMER BUCKINGHAM PALACE MAID: "It's real nice. He's worked hard enough to enjoy his life if he wants."

A YOUNG MATRON WHO MET THE KING: "Never, never will I believe it until the day it happens."

A SHOPGIRL: "Too bad Mrs. Simpson isn't a princess, but she must be out of the top drawer."

A BARRISTER: "The marriage will be the best demonstration of democracy since Roosevelt's election. It will also bring England and the United States closer together and have an invaluable effect in curbing Communism and Fascism."

A CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYE: "There is no European marriage possible or necessary for political reasons. Therefore the King is free to marry whom he chooses."

Bridal, Royal Fete Scored

Washington, Nov. 18 (US) — Protesting against "obsequious homage to monarchy" Rep. Raymond J. Cannon (D.) of Wisconsin, had today demanded the American government and American citizens ignore the coronation of King Edward VIII of England.

He further declared Americans should take no notice in any way of the wedding of King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson, should such an event occur.

On the opening day of Congress Cannon will, he said, introduce a resolution in the House requesting President Roosevelt to prohibit the American ambassador to England and other representatives of government from participating in the coronation.

DEBT STILL UNPAID

The resolution, with 19 paragraphs beginning "Whereas," opposes "pompous display," "glorifications of kings and monarchy" and criticizes England for defaulting in its debt to the United States. The resolution said in part:

"England is a defaulting debtor to the United States for the vast war debt and has paid no part of the principal nor even the interest on said debt.

"A debtor has no right to waste huge sums of money for needless display and harmful propaganda without even attempting to pay his debts.

"The tax burden of the United States could be considerably lightened if England would pay its debts to us."

Referring to the rumored marriage, Cannon in his resolution said:

"The marriage of the King of England is of no moment to us and the fact that he marries a former American citizen is likewise of no significance to us."

WOULD BAR CORONATION

The resolution protests against American girls and women paying homage at the court of England and against "subservient obeisance" paid by representatives of the United States, "while the American ambassador stands by dressed in silk knee breeches." It goes on:

"Such obsequious conduct on the part of our representatives and members of our wealthy citizens gives the impressions to the English government that we do not intend to collect our debts, and causes them to make no effort to pay us.

"Resolved, That the President of the United States is requested to order the State Department to prohibit our ambassador and other representatives of our government from participating in the coronation ceremonies and marriage ceremonies of the King of England in any official capacities, and from indulging in any practices or conduct involving the expression of devotion to monarchy, and to refrain from arranging for the participation of American citizens in the coronation ceremonies and in audiences with the King and Queen of England, or in doing anything in connection with these ceremonies in any official capacity that would leave the impression with the people of England that they are acting in an official capacity in behalf of the people of America."

Winter Here; Ask Firemen

Winter's here—and, if you don't believe it—ask the fire department. On its books today was the season's first blaze caused by injudicious thawing of frozen waterpipes.

Flames damaged a Washington street, South End, stable, imperilling 12 horses.

Treasury Duties

Agents of the United States Treasury Department have only two duties to protect the President and his family and to protect the currency of the United States, John J. McGrain, who served in the New England division for more than 20 years, told members of Jamaica Plain Council, Knights of Columbus.

Vanderbilt Heiress Pawn in New Suit

Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt

Gloria Vanderbilt, 13

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney

Mother's Affidavit

New York, Nov. 18—Here is the text of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's new court plea for the love of her child:

"It is primarily in the interests of my child that I ask for a modification of a decree of this court, for it is evident that the week-end visits are having a harmful effect upon my child.

"I am sure that when this court made its decision, it was motivated by a sincere desire that my child would not lose her affection for me and that these weekly visits would give us an opportunity to keep close together so that there would be no estrangement.

System Fails

"I am sorry to say the humane motives of the court, in that respect, have not found fulfillment. The divided allegiance imposed upon my child makes it extremely difficult to adapt herself each week.

"While she has been polite and cordial and sweet enough on her visits with me, she has altogether lacked that spontaneity of affection which I had hoped for.

"Yet when my child has been with me for the month of July, she has given me such love and affection without stint, freely and spontaneously.

"I have noticed that after a week or two she has fully readjusted herself to association with me and she has become affectionate.

"She throws her arms about me, kisses and hugs me and shows a constant desire to be in my company. At the very end, when she is forced to leave to return to her aunt, the child does so with great regret.

"So it was in July, 1935, and July, 1936.

Complete Custody

"I am sure that this court has the interests of my child at heart, and I can state sincerely that it is not for the best interests of the child to permit this weekly dividend custody.

"I want my daughter in my complete custody, or in the alternative, for a very substantial continuous period each year.

"I know that if my child were with me for a considerable time she would retain her real love and devotion for me.

"This has become quite clear from the attitude of my child when she has been with me for the month of July.

"Although I have tried without complaint to carry out the mandate of this court, I feel I cannot continue in this manner any longer, both for the sake of the child and for myself."

Hannigan Freed In Auto Death

Major Judson Hannigan, 44, of Old Middlesex road, Belmont, former president of the Massachusetts Republican Club, today was completely exonerated in East Cambridge district court in the death of a Cambridge woman whom witnesses said walked into the path of his car.

He was charged with manslaughter and operating a car so as to endanger after his machine struck Mrs. Catherine Belyea, of 12 Williams street, Cambridge, on the Concord turnpike.

Loot Recovered

Search of pawnshops pointed out by two youths, arrested at a South End address where police seized a quantity of stolen goods, resulted in the recovery of $300 worth of articles allegedly stolen in a series of breaks in Mattapan in the past few weeks.

Belmont Fire Routs Mother, Children

Mrs. Bettina Santoro of Trowbridge street, Belmont, was just giving her five-months-old daughter, Marie, a bath today, when neighbors burst in to tell her the house was afire.

Wrapping the baby in a blanket and hustling along Virginia, three, and Dominick, five, the Santoros fled to take shelter with the family next door.

Meanwhile, apparatus from Belmont, Arlington and Cambridge had responded to an alarm.

Damage to the house, a two-family dwelling, was estimated at $5000. The fire, which started in the attic, burned up through the roof. The other family was not at home.

GLORIA PLEADS FOR CHILD'S LOVE

ASKS FULL-TIME CUSTODY

New York, Nov. 18—Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt wants more than her child's politeness, she wants her child's spontaneous affection, she declared in an affidavit beginning a new court fight for full custody of her daughter, Gloria, 13.

The new litigation takes the form of a habeas corpus proceeding against the immensely wealthy Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, aunt of little Gloria.

Mrs. Whitney was given custody—except on weekends, Christmas and during July—in a previous decision by Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew, to whom Mrs. Vanderbilt's new petition is addressed.

In the event Justice Carew rejects the mother's appeal, her lawyers are preparing to carry the case into higher courts.

The attorneys are Louis D. Frohlich and Charles Schwartz, who have taken up the mother's standard where it fell when Nathan Buckan, her original attorney, died, after carrying the fight to the United States Supreme Court.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's intent now is to continue the struggle until she recovers her daughter, or Gloria, now 13, becomes old enough to have her personal wishes prevail.

The fact that the original decision stated she might apply again for the child heartens her.

3-Year Fight

The long fight began almost three years ago when Mrs. Whitney refused to yield Gloria to her mother, who had left the girl in the aunt's care temporarily.

Mrs. Vanderbilt sought then to be named guardian of the child.

Surrogate Foley was considering the question when Mrs. Vanderbilt abruptly took it to Justice Carew in Supreme Court.

After secret hearings the judge gave the decision which Mrs. Vanderbilt promptly appealed.

The appelate division sustained the decision, but exonerated the mother of misconduct.

The State Court of Appeals refused to interfere and the United States Supreme Court declared it possessed no jurisdiction.

Fay Webb Rallies; Rudy Phoning

Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP)—Fay Webb, divorced wife of Rudy Vallee, rallied slightly today after a second blood transfusion, but Santa Monica Hospital reported her condition was "not hopeful." She remained in a coma.

The 27-year-old beauty was stricken with peritonitis after an abdominal operation last Friday.

Her father, Capt. Clarence E. Webb of the Santa Monica police, said Vallee had telephoned frequently to learn of her condition.

"I'm sure Mr. Valley would do anything he could to help," the father added. "The past is all a closed book and I bear him no malice."

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader said today he would leave for California at once to be at the bedside of his former wife, Fay Webb, "if there is anything I can do to help."

Vallee said he had a "number of entertainment and broadcast engagements here that are keeping me busy, but engagements would not stand in the way."

HITLER-DUCE-REBEL PACT SPREADS WAR FEAR

await Madrid's capture by the rebels.

The rebels have been held back at the very gates of Madrid for two weeks. Today's move by Italy and Germany, unexpected in that it came before Madrid's capture, was announced in an official communique. The announcement said:

"Now that the government of General Franco has taken into possession of a g reater part of Spain, and development of the situation makes it continually more evident that in the remaining part of Spain it is impossible to speak of a responsible government exercising power, the Fascist government (Italian) has decided to recognize the government of General Franco and send him a charge d'affaires to open diplomatic relations.

HITLER ACTS IN UNISON

"The other charge will leave immediately. The present diplomatic representative has been recalled."

(Editor's Note: An identical announcement, word for word like this except for the mention of the German government instead of Italian, was issued in Berlin simultaneously).

There had been no hint whatever that Italy or Germany would act on this delicate matter before the fall of Madrid.

The action came exactly four months after outbreak of the Spanish civil war, and at a time when it began to appear the rebels might, without outside help, be compelled to lay a song siege to Madrid before taking it.

BERLIN-TOKIO PACT

Coinin grapidly on the heels of reports, not officially denied here ,that Italy was in sympathy with a projected German-Japanese alliance, the move was interpreted by diplomatic observers as another severe blow at Communism.

Any move on the part of Russia to recognize any Soviet regime in Barcelona, if and when declared, is likely to lead to serious trouble i nthe Mediterranean, according to some military observers here.

Bombs Kill 500, Wound 1200 in Madrid Ruins

Madrid, Nov. 18 (AP)—Wary thousands streamed out of Madrid's packed subway stations after a night of terror today to view the blackened skeletons of buildings and great shell and bomb craters in the heart of the capital.

A nightmare of bombardment and great fires which found whitefaced Madrilenes packed four deep in the underground city, took many lives and caused incalculable property damage gave way to bright sunshine and a lull in the battle for the Spanish capital.

One morning air raid was directed at the vent as workers section and the vicinity of the Toledo bridge, but big guns of Fascist invaders limited themselves to occasional shots along the southern and western front.

Building-to-building fighting in University City, the "No Man's Land" within the northwestern limits of Madrid subsided into sporadic exchanges of rifle and machine gun fire.

NIGHT OF HORROR

The principal streets of Madrid teemed with the subway crowds going about their business.

Overnight quarrelling and jostling for elbow room, or even curling up on the platforms beneath the shuffling feet of the crowds, Madrileños sought refuge from aerial bombs and artillery shells, while Fascist invaders and defending militiamen fought house-to-house in a corner of the city.

Unconfirmed advices from Insurgent sources just outside Madrid said Fascist tanks and armored cars were standing on the Paseo De Rosales in Madrid, after crossing into the city over a military bridge.

FLEE BOMBING AREAS

Many of those who jammed the subway stations tried to push aboard trains running to the eastern sections of Madrid and away from the bombarded portions.

The exodus to the eastern area began after Fascist bombers rained explosives and insurgent gunners sent a barrage of shells ripping into the business and residential districts.

Foy Madrilenos slept during the night as the thunder of a terrific bombardment from Fascist batteries echoed through the terrorized city.

Fires blazed in the central district as Insurgent invaders threw all available man and gun power into the drive to capture Madrid.

The northwestern section was transformed into a virtual no-man's land as attackers and defenders fought building-to-building battles in the University City district.

SLEEP AMID MOBS

The flood of refugees crowded to capacity the platform of the Gran Via Subway Station, the deepest of all Madrid's underground transportation network.

Mothers warmed milk for their babies over portable stoves. Other refugees sat on the base platform floor eating their dinner, which they had brought with them. War-weary soldiers arriving on trains from the government barricades fell out of the cars, collapsed on the platform and went to sleep.

Some of the refugees simply lay down, pulled blankets over them and went to sleep amid the shoving, shouting crowds.

The heaviest artillery and aerial assault on Madrid since the start of the civil war four months ago today began with shelling of the central business district at 4:15 p. m. yesterday.

The first artillery barrage lasted for an hour and a half. Shells fell in the Gran Via, the capital's most modern thoroughfare, struck business establishments including the Telephone building and set fires in many buildings and homes.

Militiamen rushed into action with hose and buckets of water as the flames crackled through the Gran Via area.

Later in the evening, insurgent war planes loosed a dozen heavy bombs over the center of the city.

BULLETINS

London, Nov. 18 (INS)—The Puerta del Sol, the "Times Square" of Madrid, was in flames late today under a furious rebel artillery and air bombardment, said a spokesman for the Spanish embassy.

Madrid, Nov. 18 (INS)—Bringing the admitted casualties in Madrid during the past week to 500 killed and 1200 wounded, it was semi-officially stated today 250 were killed and 800 wounded in yesterday's artillery and aerial bombardments. The majority were women and children.

Moscow, Nov. 18 (INS)—The Soviet press today reported capture of the Russian freighters Vlorava, Pyfalitka and Petrovsky off Corunna by Spanish insurgents.

"It is possible General Franco's pirate ships operating in this region are aiming deliberately to provoke international complications," the official news agency said.

400 Million Gold Shipped Out of Spain

Paris, Nov. 18—Four hundred million dollars in gold, a quarter of Spain's gold reserve, has been shipped across the frontiers by the Madrid government since the civil war began, Universal Service was told today by a reliable financial source.

Of this amount, 200 million dollars was said to have been flown from Madrid to Barcelona and then sent by Soviet ships to Moscow.

Paris Chief In Cabinet Suicide

Lille, France, Nov. 18 (INS)—Driven to distraction by charges of war desertion despite repeated official exoneration, Roger Salengro, mayor of Lille and Minister of the Interior in the Cabinet of Premier Leon Blum, committed suicide by inhaling gas today, thereby causing a new crisis in France's troubled affairs.

Before he turned on the gas jets in the bedroom of his home, Salengro wrote two letters. In one, addressed to Blum, he held his accusers responsible for his death.

Blum, who rushed to Lille upon hearing of the tragedy, read the letter in the bedroom where Salengro killed himself. His eyes filled with tears as he scanned these lines:

"Calumnies have tortured me, I have fought, but I am beaten. They did not succeed in dishonoring me, but they bear responsibility for my death, I am neither a deserter nor a traitor."

In the other letter, addressed to his sick mother, Salengro said:

"Overwork and calumny have been too much. Sorrow has beaten me."

FUNERAL CRASH INJURES FOUR

Four American Legion members, in a funeral procession along the American Legion highway, Marlborough, were injured today when their car overturned twice.

The driver, Arthur Allen of Dorchester, suffered a possible dislocation of the shoulder. The three others, Harold Talrician, Edward Armstrong and Roy Woods, all of Dorchester, suffered contusions and abrasions. They were treated at the accident ward of the City Hospital.

The funeral was being attended by members of the Ali Dorchester Post, 154, of the American Legion for a fellow member, Albert Brown, who was being buried at Mt. Hope cemetery, Forest Hills. Allen said he had to turn out to avoid another car and skidded in making the turn.

WOMAN SOUGHT AS SUSPECT IN 'BET-DEATH'

Los Angeles, Nov. 18 (INS)—A love-crazed woman was sought today as the murderer of Reid Russell, handsome 28-year-old son of a late army officer, whose body was found September 25 in a garden swing on the estate of his friend, Gouverneur Morris, famous author.

Out of the weird and admittedly conflicting pattern of evidence so far disclosed by the investigation, Captain Clyde Plummer, ace crime expert of the district attorney's staff, announced that in his opinion Russell was murdered and had not committed suicide, as was first believed.

And with this development in the reopened investigation, Plummer sought from friends of Russell, particularly a man described as knowing details of his affairs with women, the identity of the woman, or perhaps her jealous suitor, who would have a motive for the bizarre crime.

Russell was at first believed a suicide, but Plummer's startling decision to demand exhumation of his body was predicated on the opinion of a ballistics expert that the .45 automatic pistol clutched in the dead man's hand when his body was found was not the weapon with which he was slain.

Said Investigator Plummer:

"This is a love slaying and not a suicide. We have eliminated the suicide theory. As for the love-slaying theory, all I can say now is that I have information to support it.

"I shall ask for exhumation of the body for two reasons:

"First, because Captain Edward C. Crossman, ballistics expert retained by the district-attorney's office in this case, informs me that in his opinion the gun found in Russell's hand had not been fired for at least a year, although he admitted his findings would not justify courtroom testimony to that effect.

"Second, because the ejected shell of the bullet which plowed through Russell's head never has been found, despite a painstaking search.

"This would indicate the shell either was deliberately taken away or the fatal shot was fired at some point other than the one at which the body was found.

"Examination of the exhumed body will show whether the bullet wound was made by a missile of different caliber from the .32 calibre bullets which fit the gun the dead man's hand held.

"If the calibre is found to be different, the last vestige of doubt that this is murder will be dispelled."

With special emphasis on the "mystery romance," Plummer declared he would dig deeply to get to the bottom of the bizarre case, and he added ominously that he was prepared to "throw a lot of people in jail, if necessary."

TALKS TO MOTHER

Plummer made his announcement after he had been closeted for more than three hours with Mrs. Victoria Russell, mother of the dead man, at whose anguished cry of "murder!" the district attorney's office last week reopened the investigation of her son's strange death.

Much of the conference, it was learned, dealt with a series of frantic telephone calls Mrs. Russell said a woman made to the Russell apartment, declaring that the handsome young man had failed to keep an engagement with her and begging the mother to disclose her son's whereabouts.

Plummer dispatched investigators to the apartment to begin a check on the telephone calls.

And Plummer himself went back to the Morris estate to institute new questioning of Lila Lee, dark-haired film star, who was a guest of Morris and his wife when Russell's body was discovered in a rustic swing in the Morris garden.

Miss Lee is branded as absurd rumors that Russell, an unemployed automobile salesman, had been interested in her romantically.

Battle Rabies in Chelsea

Nicholas Ianno, of Chelsea, is displaying dog bites on his hand to his brother, Guy. The dog that attacked both the Ianno boys and several others had rabies according to the official report. Thus every precaution is being taken to care for children bitten during the last week or more.

Col. Green Estate Battle Resumed

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Lawyers again today attempted to find their way to a disposition of the estate of the late Col. Edward H. R. Green through labyrinthian legal channels, twisted, turned and dead-ended through two generations.

Seventy million dollars or more are to be distributed to the successful heir or heirs, lawyers and inheritance tax departments.

Hearings were called to resume here. Three states, Massachusetts, New York and Texas are claiming residence of the late son of Hetty Green. They seek the large inheritance taxes. Florida, where Col. Green maintained a winter residence, may file a claim.

To the colonel's widow, Mrs. Mabel Harlow Green, the present phase of the case is of great importance. She contends that "unknowingly" she waived rights to the estate.

She said that when she signed th agreement, in 1917 before her marriage, she was told its purpose was to provide her with "pin money," a life annuity of $18,000. The state laws of Texas holds such agreements invalid, her counsel said.

HUSBAND FREED IN HOLLISTON DEATH

Framingham, Nov. 18—Fred Bard, 45, Holliston WPA worker, was released today from a charge that he murdered Mrs. Alice Bowker Bard, his bride of five months. Bard was arrested Saturday, the day after his bride was found dead in the bedroom of their home.

Judge Edward W. Blodgett ordered Bard's release in Framingham district court when Chief of Police Lewis T. Holbrook of Holliston said he had been advised by the district attorney's office that there was not enough evidence to support a murder charge.

Bard was joyous when the court ordered his freedom.

An examination of Mrs. Bard's vital organs was made, but no official report of the findings was placed in the court record.

Mrs. Bard apparently had died Wednesday, three days before her body was found by police. Bard was found sitting in a room adjoining her bedroom. He said he had discovered her body Friday morning but had been so stunned he could not call a doctor.

Health Resort Owner Is Held

Middleboro, Nov. 18 (AP)—Dr. Helen Gertrude Randle, 56, operator of a seven-acre health resort, pleaded innocent today to charges she practiced medicine without a license. She was held in $1000 for hearing November 30.

Davis, Wesleyan Song Writer, Dies

Middletown, Ct., Nov. 18 (AP)—William B. Davis, who wrote the music for Wesleyan University's traditional song, "Alma Mater," died today after a short illness of pneumonia. He was instructor of music in Middletown's high schools, and formerly taught music at the Berkeley Divinity School.

Showing you us Wilkens picking up our mail

That's old Tim Stiles reaching the mail to me, and Tom toting the bag. You can't hardly see my brother William Wilken coming out of the door on account of the picture not being lit up so good.

Harry E. Wilken

I sometimes wonder who isn't ordering our Family's Whiskey!

Judging from how most everybody took to our Family's Whiskey the moment they found they could have the same whiskey as us distillers enjoy ourselves, there must be mighty few ever taste it without their ordering some!

Well, I suppose you couldn't hardly expect different. Not as I'd have you think William and Tom and me are asking for the credit for its being so tasty. I claim it's Pa Wilken more than anybody—that is, him and Grandpa Wilken. It was Grandpa Wilken that gave Pa his schooling in whiskey making—and Pa picked up plenty in his own 44 years of distilling. And all that the three generations of us picked up relating to mildness and tastiness, we put into our Family's Recipe. I'd love for you to get a taste of it!

LIBERAL LAWS BY HIGH COURT FORECAST

Washington, Nov. 18 (INS)—The executive board of the United Mine Workers today directed William Green, president of the A. F. of L., to "cease and desist" from his present acts and associations against the U. M. W. The board's decision said that "if he elects to desist he will be made welcome by this union in accordance with his rank."

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 18 (INS)—A warning that the Supreme Court must change its attitude toward liberal legislation, and a ringing defense of Roosevelt social laws already on the statute books brought American Federation of Labor convention delegates cheering to their feet today.

Major George L. Berry, Federal co-ordinator for industry, sounded the warning, along with a prediction that the high court would "adjust itself" in response to the mandate of the people as expressed in support of the Roosevelt theories at the polls November 3.

CHANGES TO BE MADE

Berry said bluntly that unless the court, which has invalidated the major pieces of legislation of the Roosevelt administration, does change and support such measures, the people will find a way to validate such laws anyway.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins sounded the defense of laws already enacted by Congress at Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion, and declared the government must continue to move forward.

Both speakers looked at the record of the presidential election, and told cheering delegates that the people have spoken, and that there is no higher authority.

"I hope and feel that the Supreme Court," said Berry, "will adjust itself to the great, overwhelming mandate expressed by the American people.

"If, of course, there should be further reversals of the now evident sentiment of the people, I venture this prediction:

"We will find a way.

TIME TO OBSERVE

"Fortunately, there is time for us to observe the tenor of the court before Congress opens in January. Several issues are before the court involving liberal legislation."

Miss Perkins devoted most of her address to an outline of the benefits which have come to the American people through the Roosevelt regime, and said a new era had dawned for labor.

Social Security Act

Prying Employers Cause Protest

With 90,000 employers' registration blanks due to be returned to the postoffices of the state this week, in preparation for the registration of individuals under the social security act, the attention of the entire nation is engrossed by the forms and directions issued by the government in connection with registration and taxation. Herewith, in another of its series of articles on the subject, the Boston Evening American discusses some of the more common problems that arise.

The revelation that some employers are endeavoring to use the Social Security act as an excuse for prying into their employes' private affairs drew sharp protest from John Pearson, New England regional director of the Social Security Board.

One such attempt consisted of a form headed with a statement that the information was required by the Social Security Board. This employer was asking, in addition to the routine questions about age, name, address, etc., such questions as:

Offending Questions

1—Nationality. This question is not asked by the government, because the government does not care. The government, in collecting a tax from you, is merely forcing you to buy retirement insurance, and you do not have to be a citizen.

2—Number of dependents. This is a matter of indifference to the government, although some employers are including it. The social security old age benefits and pensions are not paid on a basis of the individual's need, but because they are of right coming to the individual.

3—Marital status. The government does not ask you whether or not you are married, because your marriage makes no difference under the act. The act is solely concerned with taxing your wages now, up to $3000 a year, and arranging to pay you a pension later.

4—Membership in any labor organization. This is another matter the government takes no interest in, although it is possible, if you want to, to return the filled out application form to the Social Security authorities through your labor union, if you belong to one.

Other Questions

There were other questions employers were putting out in the guise of social security, but these will do for samples. Some of the questions were so harmless as to appear to be little more than just irritants, but others, such as the labor organization question, had far greater possible significance.

It was this paragraph that drew down the fire of the Board on certain corporations here in New England. Investigating, after a protest from one employer from John F. Gateles, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, Pearson obtained a photostat of the questionnaire being required of employes and, after a conference with the attorney general's office in Washington, threatened legal action if the unofficial questions were not withdrawn.

Of course, any employer has the right to ask anything he chooses of his employes. That is not the government's business, unless the employer is interfering with the legal rights of individuals.

However, when an employer leads his employe to believe that he is giving only information required by a Federal agency, under the law, then he is overstepping the traces.

The questions the government asks are solely designed to furnish a permanent identification record of each of America's 26,000,000 working people. For this reason the government does not ask for race, and for the father's and mother's full name, in addition to the routine.

Examine Blanks

When someone hands you a blank form and tells you it is a questionnaire required by the government, look at it carefully. If it is a social security application blank, which will be given out next week, and must be returned by December 5 filled out in the proper manner, it will have at the top the official heading of the Treasury Department.

At the left, there is printed "Form ss-5, Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Service." Over the center of the blank are the words "U. S. Social Security Act. Application for account number."

If these words are not on the blank you are asked to fill out, it is a fraud.

If you have any questions about the Social Security Act and its workings, write them to the Social Security Editor of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square. Follow this timely series of articles in this newspaper. Another will appear tomorrow.

Woman Acquitted In Ballot Tearup

Mrs. Dorothy Colby, 29, of Francis street, Brookline, a first-time voter, was found not guilty of violating the election laws by destroying an official ballot, in Roxbury court today.

Mrs. Colby, recently moved to Brookline, returned to Ward 10, Precinct 11, to cast her first ballot in the recent elections. Her vote was challenged and in the ensuing furore Mrs. Colby tore up her ballot. She was arrested on the spot.

Before Judge Frankland W. L. Miles, the woman explained that when her vote was challenged she became excited and didn't realize that tearing up of a ballot was a violation of the law.

With a word of warning, Judge Miles found her not guilty.

All P. O. Yule Jobs Filled Says Tague

"No more Christmas help wanted."

Such a sign was posted outside the office of Acting Postmaster Peter F. Tague in the postoffice building today.

Unemployed men from 25 cities and towns in the Boston postal district have been deluging Tague with requests for extra Yuletide work.

SECURITY FILM SHORTS READY

Three motion picture shorts illustrating different phases of the government's far-reaching program of social security for 26,000,000 American workers were given their first showing today at the Fine Arts Theater.

With wage records being set up for 1,700,000 workers in the New England area alone, the pictures were filmed to show just how registration is being carried out. Each step in the gigantic task of arranging lifetime identification for workers, and for setting up machinery to collect the payroll taxes out of which social security benefits will be financed, is graphically illustrated.

The three films are available to any motion picture theater in New England, free of any cost, including transportation, to the exhibitor.

They may be secured from the regional offices of the Social Security Board, 120 Boylston street, where a large supply of them is available. Applications for the film will be handled in order of their receipt.

Hurley Home Prepares for Inaugural

By WILLIAM C. CONWAY

Completely rested after a 10-day vacation at Nantucket and Cape Cod, Governor-elect Charles F. Hurley will return to his Cambridge home tonight. Tomorrow morning he plans to begin work on his inaugural address.

Governor-elect Hurley concluded his vacation by visiting personal friends in Osterville before returning to his Fresh Pond lane, Cambridge, home for a reunion with his four children.

Tomorrow morning, Governor-elect Hurley will confer with his secretaries, John V. Mahoney and Paul C. Ryan, preparatory to the work on his inaugural address.

It is anticipated that the first official statement of Governor-elect Hurley to the Legislature will be a concise recital of his plans.

The Governor-elect's inaugural address, it is expected, will be based principally upon the 14-point platform which he presented to the electorate during the pre-election campaign.

U. S. Cruiser Blast Injures Seaman

Washington, Nov. 18 (INS)—An explosion of undetermined cause, aboard the heavy cruiser U. S. S. Houston, resulted in the probable fatal injury of one man, the Navy Department announced today.

Gordon Archibald Campbell, a water tender, suffered burns which it was feared would prove fatal, when the explosion rocked fire room blower No. 1 on the cruiser.

"TOMMY GUN" SQUAD STARTS IN BOSTON

On direct orders from Police Commissioner McSweeney and Superintendent Fallon, a "machine-gun" squad has been organized and has been in operation for the past 48 hours, it was learned today.

Its detail is to halt the wave of holdups of numbers-ring and race-track emporiums that have been raided continually by hi-jackers for the past few weeks.

The squad, first of its type in Boston police history, was told that many of the holdups have been made by robbers armed with machine guns. The police in the detail were thus similarly armed.

They are operating in a special automobile, cruising the city area where the past raids have taken place.

Sergeant Arthur M. Tiernan, ace of the headquarters detective bureau, is in charge, it was learned.

Other police "machine gunners" are Patrolman John Cinzan of the armorer's office, Patrolman William Desmond, champion pistol shot of the department, and Patrolman Joseph McGovern of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Police officials estimate that more than 20 hi-jackings have been successful in the last few weeks and that tens of thousands of dollars have changed hands.

They have also determined, it was said, that many citizens—not professional gamblers themselves—have been trapped in the numbers race-track rooms during robberies and forced to line up against a wall while they were "cleaned."

The machine-gun squad was formed as a result of the last spectacular stickup of a place in a downtown building in the theatrical district.

Police have learned of all the robberies through the so-called "grapevine" channels. In no case have the gamblers themselves complained—and for obvious reasons.

Boston Fetes Royal Couple

Enjoy Quiet Visit

PRINCE AND PRINCESS SCHAUMBURG-LIPPE
Entertained by Bishop Spellman Here

Boston society today had entertained two members of European royalty whose visit here was so unheralded they might as well have been incognito.

They were the youthful Prince and Princess Ma and Helga zu Schaumburg-Lippe. He is a grand nephew of the former German Kaiserand of the former Crown Prince, while his present career as a geestry in the Mayflower's passenger list.

The royal couple was entertained here yesterday, and they departed today for New York after a stopover at the Ritz-Carlton.

FETED BY BISHOP

Feature of their visit here was a quiet dinner party given for them by Bishop Francis J. Spellman of Newton, at which 20 guests were present.

And the intervening time found the modest prince and princess hurrying to fulfill all the teas, parties and receptions arranged for them ex Baxter's visit.

The Prince parried questions of a Boston Evening American reporter on his opinion of the current crisis in Europe by explaining enthusiastically that his wife interest is sports—and especially automobile racing.

PEACE GERMAN AIM

He recently won the King's gold cup on the 24-hour Grand Prix race held on a Belgian dirt track.

But on Germany's attitude toward the rest of the European powers, the Prince quickly declared her only aim is continued peace, adding:

"Her numerical strength must only be reckoned with as a factor to rfrom within, and has no significance from an active or aggressor's standpoint to the rest of the world."

The prince is 39, the princess about 30. Pleased with their reception in the United States they have decided to extend their visit in December 4, when they will embark for Germany on the Europa. Grandfather of the princess was Admiral James M. Miller, one-time commandant of the Annapolis Naval Academy.

6000 IN MILLS GIVEN RAISE

New wage increases and a bonus distribution to more than 6000 mill and shoe factory workers in New Hampshire and Rhode Island were announced today.

The wage increases, all of them 10 per cent, were announced to employes of the Lonsdale Woolen Company, of Providence, R. I., with branch factories in Berkley and Blackstone, R. I. The Lonsdale mills employ a total of 2500 persons.

In New Hampshire, the Canterbury Woolen Company, in Tilton, and the Harris Emery plants, in Penacook, announced similar increases. These mills employ a total of 550 persons.

At all of the factories of the International Shoe Co., located in cities and towns in the southern section of the state, a cash bonus of one week's pay will be distributed to persons who have been employed between the first of the year and the end of the present month.

The bonus will be paid to each of the 3400 employes on the pay day before Christmas.

Constable Jailed In Hit-Run Death

Northampton, Nov. 18 (AP)—Judge John W. Mason today sentenced Constable Joseph J. Kempkes, 43, former Belchertown police chief, to two years in the house of correction for leaving the scene of an accident after his automobile killed Michael Sklarski of Granby, Monday.

Chief of Police John J. Sullivan of South Hadley said Kempkes, in attempting to avoid hitting a skunk on a South Hadley highway, drove his machine into Sklarski and fled.

Schools Reopen In Springfield, O.

Springfield, O., Nov. 18 (AP)—Classes resumed today at Springfield's schools—32,300 pupils and 981 teachers returning to their desks for the first time since November 6.

The board of education which closed the schools due to a lack of operating funds agreed Monday to reopen for a four-day period while an effort is made to establish a definite financial program.

Simple Rites for Schumann-Heink

Beloved Singer Gave Away Riches

Hollywood, Nov. 18 (US)—Beloved by two generations of music lovers, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink is dead today at her Hollywood home.

For more than four hours before her death, the internationally-known diva, who celebrated her 75th birthday last June 15, and who had planned to appear in pictures, had been in a coma.

At her death-bed were four of her six living children, two daughters-in-law and four grandchildren.

They arranged today for a quiet funeral service.

They were Henry Schumann-Heink, his wife, Elsie, and their daughters, Barbara and Katherine, all of Burbank; Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, and his wife, une, of Hollywood; George Schumann-Schumann-Heink, with whom the noted singer made her home; Mrs. Charles Fox of San Diego, and the children of Mme. Schumann-Heink's two dead sons—Ditti and Hans.

Unable to reach their mother's side in time to bid her goodbye were a son, Walter Schumann (CQT) of Chicago, and a daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Grief, who is in Germany.

Two other sons were killed in action during the World War, a conflict which saddened Mme. Schumann-Heink the more because she had sons fighting on both sides.

WEALTH DWINDLES

In the height of her career Mme. Schumann-Heink was reputed to earn $125,000 annually from concert work alone, while royalties on talking machine records brought in an additional $50,000.

Thrifty investments, mostly in Chicago and California real estate, were made and managed by her with a skill that brought steadily increasing values. She became one of the wealthiest singers of her day.

But her own generosity to friends and relatives and the world's turn from prosperity to acute economic distress shrank her fortune to the vanishing point.

Mme. Schumann-Heink was a star in her own right, backed by 20 years experience on German operatic stages when she made her debut in America on November 7, 1898.

HEALTH BROKE

Her health broke in 1905 and her voice was reported ruined, but she went back to Germany for a rest, accepted engagements there and finally returned to the United States for 129 appearances in opera and concert in 1906-1907.

The next season she gave 113 concerts and then went to Europe for a year, where she created one of the principal parts in Strauss' new opera, "Electra."

Her return for a 1909-1910 concert tour proved the most profitable of her American career.

Thereafter she tapered off her strenuous work, but continued briefer annual tours and limited operatic engagements.

One of her last stage appearances took place in February, 1926, when she emerged from "retirement" to sing "Erda" with the Metropolitan.

Her most famous roles were "Fides," in "Le Prophete," "Ortrud, "Erda," "Fricka" and "Orpheus" in Gluck's opera of that name. But she mastered 120 other parts and in her youth was a famous "Carmen."

MOTHER OF 8

Mme. Schumann-Heink took out American citizenship papers at Cincinnati in 1905. Married three times she was the mother of eight children.

She was born June 15, 1861, near what is now Praha, capital of Czechoslovakia, and then was Prague, Austria.

The World War years were difficult for Mme. Schumann-Heink. She had sons in both the American and German armies, and another was aboard a German submarine.

But she held loyally to the land of her adoption, touring training camps, singing for soldiers and begging indulgence for her boys in the German army because they were doing their duty as they saw it.

She was widely popular among war veterans and was an honorary officer in the American Legion.

$15,000 BLAZE IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Nov. 18—Two firemen were overcome by smoke and a third cut by glass, in a general alarm fire this noon in the four-story brick block at 317-379 Essex street.

Traffic through the city's main artery was blocked by fire apparatus.

The flames were confined to two stores on the street floor, and the basement. Half a dozen customers and employes in the stores were driven out.

Eugene Comtois, driver for ladder one, and Walter Shea of ladder five, were felled by smoke but managed to get out.

They later returned to fighting the fire. Gene Topping of engine five was cut about the hands and arms.

The fire started, according to Fire Chief Frank A. Sullivan, in a stack of Christmas boxes, which were too near the heater.

Tentative estimate by Chief Sullivan placed the damage at $15,000.

Lily Pons to Wed 'Before Christmas'

Newark, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP)—Lily Pons says she and Andre Kostelanetz will be married "sometime before Christmas" but he will not venture to say what Christmas she means.

The diminutive opera and motion picture star, landing at the airport here with the bandmaster, joined him in a denial that they were already married.

$5000 Job Killed

Bitter opposition during the past week from clergymen and members of the Cambridge Taxpayers' Association resulted in the defeat by the Cambridge City Council of two orders to create a $5000 a year post of commissioner of public safety.

Milford Block Swept by Fire

Milford, Mass., Nov. 18 (AP)—The old Alhambra block, situated in Lincoln square, was swept by fire today. The loss is principally by water and smoke. Skipper Dead, Ship Heads for Boston

With her captain lying dead in his quarters and two members of her crew dead, some three in the mountainous seas, the Boston-bound freighter Tweedbank was en route to Boston today.

The Tweedbank was originally due to dock at the Army Base today.

Whether any other vessels were beside the battered ship, whose radio operator has been trapped inside his radio room for more than 24 hours, could not be learned.

No word has been received from the ship indicating any other members of the crew had been killed or injuries during the terrific storm.

Early yesterday the American Radio Corporating station at Chatham reported the following message from the Tweedbank:

"Heavy gale. Hove to now. Captain killed and two men washed overboard. Radio operator still marooned in radio room and unable to get to the bridge."

Whether the radio operator trapped in his operating room after several waves crushed his shack, had been able to get food during his imprisonment could not be learned.

Sharkey's Manager Guilty of Assault

Johnny Buckley, former manager of Jack Sharkey, was found guilty today in municipal court of striking Joseph Dow, former lightweight champion, on the head with a bottle during a fight in a Friend street gymnasium.

Buckley appealed the two-month sentence imposed by Judge Adlow and was released on his own recognizance.

Overworked?
Avoid Constipation

Long hours at the desk, shortened hours of sleep, hasty and irregular meals, lack of exercise—these sap the vitality of the strongest body.

At such times the danger of constipation is more common and more serious.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

Fire Ruins Historic N.H. Home

North Hampton, N. H., Nov. 18—The old Moulton homestead, one of the landmarks of this section of the state, was burned to the ground today and its present owner, Edward Marston, was injured trying to save his valuables.

Towns of Rye and Hampton sent aid to battle the blaze, but it took half an hour to pipe water to the scene and the strong wind had whipped the flames so by then the fight was useless.

Marston, Boston realtor, lost $1,000 in cash and $500 more in jewelry and clothing. The house and outbuildings, all destroyed, were valued at $10,000.

It was while trying to get in a second-floor window to save his money that Marston lost his eyebrows and hair and had his face scorched.

The house was built in 1807 and after the fashion of the period was christened thus:

"Here is a frame built good and strong.
"An able man to carry it on.
"Jonathan Economy and Olive Delight.
"Framed last week and raised for Saturday night."

Jonathan Moulton was the builder and his wife was Olive.

Neither Marston nor fire officials have yet determined what started the blaze. Marston, a bachelor, was washing dishes in the kitchen when he heard the crackling of flames in the ell.

Bay State Mayors Nominated in Cities

was that in Fall River, where Mayor Alexander C. Murray eventually came out ahead of his nearest opponent, former Mayor Edmund P. Talbot.

MURRAY ON TOP

The Fall River voters gave Mayor Murray a total of 10,837, compared with 9728 for ex-Mayor Talbot, a margin of only 1109.

The close vote indicated a close vote between the two nominees at the election next month.

Representative Frank O'Brien was third, with 4,565, and was eliminated along with former State Senator Walter McLane.

Douglas Richardson, with 8,329 votes, led the field seeking nomination to the City Council, in which 4 candidates out of 1299 contestants were nominated.

DALRYMPLE LEADS FIVE

In the largest primary vote ever cast in Haverhill, Mayor George E. Dalrymple, seeking nomination for a third term, led five candidates.

State Senator Charles A. P. McAree, who was defeated for re-election to the Senate earlier this month, was nominated to oppose Mayor Dalrymple for mayor.

Mayor James E. McVann of Peabody was renominated with Joseph B. O'Keefe, a leather worker, nominated to contest the election with him.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin of Quincy, carrying every ward and precinct, led his nearest opponent, former Mayor Thomas J. McGrath, by nearly three to one.

Mayor James M. O'Brien of Revere received 51 per cent of the vote in the primaries, but fell 388 votes short of the 50 per cent which would have given him re-election without another contest.

As it is, O'Brien must run against City Councilor William H. Gallagher in the final election.

In Gardner, City Councilor Fred E. Perry, most active council critic of Mayor Timpany, led the mayor by 2090 to 1929 and a hot fight is expected in the final test between the two nominees.

Light voting was the rule in all the cities except Haverhill, where a record primary vote was cast.

LATE REVERE COUNT

Counting of ballots in Revere was not finished until 6 o'clock this morning when the completed tally showed Mayor O'Brien with 7313 votes to 4532 for Gallagher. Their final test will take place December 8, with O'Brien the indicated winner.

The third Revere candidate, Timothy J. Kelley, was completely out of the running.

Mayor O'Brien carried every ward in the city and every precinct with the exception of Precinct 2, Ward 3, the stronghold of former Mayor Andrew A. Casassa, who supported Gallagher.

Tax Assessor John M. Liset was virtually assured of re-election as he led his nearest opponent by more than 4000.

Miss Fannie Conrad Janvrin, seeking re-election to the Revere school committee, received one of the highest votes ever polled in that city.

In Quincy, Mayor Burgin's vote was 10,247 to 3,429 for former Mayor McGrath. President Laurence J. Curtin of the city council was eliminated, receiving 1,844 votes. McGrath ran without a political organization, compared with the well-organized campaign of Mayor Burgin.

Third in the Haverhill mayoralty fight was George F. Ramsey, with David W. Caddaire fourth and John L. Lyons fifth. Attorney Philip H. Stacy led the aldermanic race.

NEW DIAMOND CROWN STYLE

This brief summary of the new Chevrolet's features brings out the salient differences between the two series for 1937.

H. K. Bragg, New England regional manager, says:

In two new series, Master De Luxe and Master, both have 112¼-inch wheelbase. Improvements common to both series include:

New power, economy and smoothness, provided by entirely new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine, lighter, more compact and smoother, developing greater power and torque at all speeds. It adheres closely to time-tried Chevrolet engineering, but is redesigned throughout, resulting in the finest performance in Chevrolet history.

New beauty, style, safety and comfort, in longer, lower, completely re-designed bodies by Fisher, featuring new "diamond crown" speedline styling" and unfoulding new all-steel, all-steel construction. Lowering of body made possible by adoption of hypoid rear axle and box-girder frame, the former never before available in the low-priced field. Safety plate glass specified in all models at no additional charge.

New safety, comfort and convenience, due to such major body refinements as wider seats, greater headroom and footroom; larger one-piece windshield with narrower posts for greater visibility; wider doors and windows; greatly increased luggage space, adjustable front seat which is tilted forward and elevated slightly when in forward position; more steeply-inclined windshield reducing reflection and glare; re-designing and relocation of instruments and controls.

New safety and durability, due to new hydraulic brakes. Extra-rugged X-member on all models at no additional charge.

New ease of servicing, due to removal of gasoline, water and oil intakes on right or left side of the car.

Principal differences between Master De Luxe and Master Series:

FRONT AXLE DESIGN
Master De Luxe
Fully-enclosed knee-action on all models at no additional charge.
Master
Improved riding qualities, and greater safety through refinements in I-beam front axle and semi-elliptic front springs.

STEERING GEAR
Master De Luxe
Worm and roller sector type, 16-1 ratio. Super-stabilized steering, completely free from road shock except from roughest roads.
Master
Worm and straddle-mounted sector type, 16-1 ratio. New shock-absorbing drag link in steering mechanism absorbs road shocks before they reach the steering wheel, resulting in the most comfortable steering in any conventionally-sprung car.

REAR AXLE RATIO
Master De Luxe
Exceptional performance capacity assured by rear axle ratio of 4.22 to 1.
Master
Maximum economy obtained by use of 3.55 to 1 rear axle ratio.

FRONT SEAT DESIGN
Master De Luxe
Split type, full-width, front seats in coach and town sedan models for maximum comfort and ease of ingress and egress.
Master
Bench seats in front compartment of coach and town sedan models.

ACCESSORIES AND TRIM
Master De Luxe
De Luxe throughout.
Master
Of good quality, but with emphasis on serviceability rather than luxury.

BODY TYPES
Master De Luxe
Sedan, Coach, Town Sedan, Sport Sedan, Business Coupe and Sport Coupe.
Master
Sedan, Coach, Town sedan, Sport Sedan, Business Coupe, Cabriolet, Coupe Pickup, and Sedan Delivery.

Popular Nash

Banner Year Predicted By Nash Leaders

By C. H. BLISS
Vice-President and Director of Sales, Nash Motors Company

Nash is experiencing its greatest announcement period in recent history. From the day the 1937 Nash La Fayette models for 1937 were first shown to its distributor organization, enthusiasm has been unbounded among the entire Nash organization.

Orders for 24,000 Nash La Fayette cars were placed in two days when the cars were previewed by the distributors. In a series of dealer meetings held in all important marketing points, additional orders poured in.

C. H. Bliss

Production was stepped up to meet the increasing demands. With the first appearance of the new cars in dealer points the consumer interest was so great that dealers were hard pressed to keep the new models on their floors.

The dealer organization, after a material increase in number during 1936, was augmented by scores of new dealers anxious to take advantage of the popularity of the new Nash offerings.

In other words, there is every indication this will be a banner year for Nash. The decision of the management to "go out to win," and the resultant designing of a completely new car, big and roomy, with increased power and performance, met with enthusiastic response not only in our own organization but everywhere the cars have been shown.

This opinion is not only mine alone, but is held by everybody in the entire organization. There is a harmony of purpose which bodes ill for past sales and production records.

As evidence of the factory determination to carry its share of the load, the greatest announcement period appropriation in the history of the company has been set aside for advertising the three 1937 series of cars. This schedule calls for the expenditure of 50 per cent more money in newspapers alone than ever before was expended in the introduction of the new Nash offerings.

Tewksbury Night

The McLaurin-Jones Young People's Association, composed of Greater Bostonians who summered in that suburb of Tewksbury, held its winter formal party at the Cocoanut Grove, with Miss Arlene Reddish, of West Roxbury as chairman.

FEATHERY RIDE IN CHRYSLERS

Shock absorbers of a new and greatly improved design contribute to the riding ease of the 1937 Chrysler Royal and Chrysler Imperial, says Allen M. Fay, president of C. E. Fay Co. and Boston distributor.

This shock absorber, which has been named the "Aero Hydraulic" by Chrysler, operates on the same principle as a large naval or coast defense gun's recoil mechanism.

It is in use on the largest and most advanced types of airplane landing gears which, of course, require shock absorbers that are both very rugged in design and at the same time soft in action.

The Aero-Hydraulic shock absorber is a two-way, telescopic, direct-acting design. It consists of a piston working within a closed cylinder, the piston being attached through a rod to the car frame and the lower end of the cylinder to a wheel connection. Thus is eliminated the cam, lever and link used in previous constructions.

CONTROL REBOUND

When the car wheel moves relative to the frame, certain valves within the absorber operate to build up hydraulic pressures resisting that movement. If this resistance is too great the car will ride in a harsh and jerky manner. If the resistance is too low the car will swing too much and the ride will likewise be uncomfortable.

Due to the larger volume of fluid displaced by the piston movements in this type absorber, as compared to previous types, the control of these resistances is much more easily accomplished.

The shock absorbers control both rebound and compression resistance, that is both downward and upward movements of the wheels, the valves for that purpose having been designed by Chrysler engineers after years of experiments on the road and in the laboratory.

ADJUST THEMSELVES

These valves permit the adjustment of the shock absorber to the type of car on which it is used so that the best possible ride may be obtained.

The control valves are the secret of correct performance under all conditions. These new absorbers adjust themselves to any road or load condition.

11 FORD BODY STYLES

The motorist has 11 different body styles to choose from in the new Ford line. Those with deluxe equipment are the tudor sedan, tudor touring sedan, fordor sedan, fordor touring sedan, five-window coupe, club coupe, cabriolet, club cabriolet, convertible sedan, roadster and phaeton. All of these body styles are available with the 85-horsepower engine.

The tudor sedan, tudor touring sedan, fordor sedan, fordor touring sedan and five-window coupe also are offered without deluxe equipment with either the 60-horsepower or 85-horsepower engine at the option of the customer.

The club coupe is a new body style in the 1937 line, having the same seating arrangement as the 1936 club cabriolet.

All deluxe equipped models have dual equipment, including horns, windshield wipers, sunvisors and tail lamps, in addition to interior refinements not found in the lower-priced models.

"Our new cars are not last year's models with a few minor changes. We've improved them in a lot of ways that really count. I've spent most of my life in the automobile business, and to my knowledge, nobody has ever offered cars that compare with them at anywhere near their prices. I honestly believe that when you see them, their size and bigness alone will convince you that we're out to win, stronger than ever!"

FOUR ACES FOR THE 1937 SHOWDOWN!

A SPECIAL — A CENTURY — A ROADMASTER — A LIMITED

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $765 (List at Flint, Mich.)

Every Buick in the 1937 line has more horsepower, more room, more luxury and more performance—on top of the finest quality and value that General Motors science and Buick workmanship can provide

THE fates are kind to the automobile buyer of next year—just take a look at Buick's offerings and you'll see why!

Here are four lines of new cars—aces every one—the ablest cars, the handsomest performers, the biggest values we believe the automobile industry has so far seen.

There is the 1937 Buick SPECIAL—stepped up in style, power, room and finish—thriftier than ever, and at the same low price.

There is the cyclonic CENTURY—all compact of obedient explosive energy—quicker, quieter, more sensational even than before.

There is the magnificent ROADMASTER just what its name suggests—more powerful, more maneuverable, more luxurious now than its marvelously mobile predecessor.

And there is the lordly LIMITED—the Avenue's proudest saunterer—fleet, sophisticated, capacious—uncommon carrier of the elect.

Every one of these cars brings something fresh and progressive to motoring—every one of them outranks in engineering and appointment even the phenomenal cars that uphold Buick's current sensational success.

See them and you'll say that the $14,500,000 appropriated and now being spent on top of the recent $15,000,000 put into re-tooling and re-equipping Buick factories is money not only wisely but fruitfully employed!

Enid Powelson, the athlete:

"The trouble with Wellesley girls, is that they never had a chance to go out with a real Harvard man. They only rate the duds, so they make the duds the types of Harvard men. I hope Harvard men take Smith girls to that game. In fact, most of them will."

Poor Students

"Over at Wellesley they are getting deeper because the Harvard man is staying away from their dances. And, why not? They are social opportunists. The idea is to shuttle from one man to another as fast as one can politely do it. Popularity is the keynote, not companionship. I'd never take a Wellesley girl to the game Saturday."

Hark to the solemn words of Malone, the A-A-A-A administrator:

"The girls say that Harvard men have money, social position and dress in sloppy fashion. Let me point out that Harvard is the college of poor students. A place where $5,000,000 is spent on scholarships for a student body of less than 6000.

"They talk of our social position when they know well enough that their background and environment is practically the same as ours. Furthermore if we dress sloppily I should like to inquire why the young ladies at Wellesley walk around their campus in overalls. We're all seen them."

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

Three generations undersea and any family's [illegible] and tales of adventure. For almost a score of years Fred J. Wallace, the diver, has been continuing his family's heritage of plunging to the sea bottom and unearthing everything from wills to stolen automobiles.

Grandfather Hugh Wallace, a hardy Scot, founded the diving dynasty over a century ago. Fred Wallace, Sr. continued it. And in no small way! His adventures encompassed everything from a six-month pearl-diving act off the coast of Australia, for which he received the sum of $2.50, to raising sunken vessels off the Labrador coast.

Nowadays, according to the present Fred Wallace, a diver must be a jack of all trade. He realizes most of his income from marine construction work. He entertains no illusion of recovering Captain Kidd's treasure. In fact in his daily stint, he hasn't even come across a keg of rum.

The diving dress, as it is called in the parlance of the profession, weighs about 150 pounds. It is fashioned of three layers of material-outer surfaces of canvas, the middle layer of rubber. Helmet and breast plate is made of copper and two straps lash on sandals of cast-iron.

Most indispensable parts of the equipment are a lead belt for weighting purposes and a hose which pumps the necessary ozone to the submarine worker.

Ordinarily, the diver is suspended on a wire a few feet above the ocean's bottom. This prevents the murky floor from being disturbed gives better visibility and doesn't annoy the fish who, according to Mr. Wallace, are very playful. He has yet to encounter Minnie, the mermaid. Hope springs eternal in this instance.

Be of strong heart, milady, even the auto salesman has your beauty problems at heart. In the opinion of this august profession, light gray upholstery does nothing for you. Hence the strategic switch to warm beige tones.

The automobile industry has brightened in a big way. Sales are better, not to say a word about the rainbow-hued cars on display at Mechanics Building. The color scheme ranges from Charlevoix green to La Mothe blue. In spite of the variety, auto agents still have to contend with the woman who wants her car painted the shade of her favorite felt hat.

Sixty-two nations were signatory to the pact, which calls for the neutralization of the injured in time of war. The emblem is universally accepted except in Turkey and Iraq, where, because of their Mohammedan beliefs, a white flag with a red crescent is unfurled.

Volunteer Thinker For 1937 Red Sox Swings Into Action

I TRUST THAT MY NEWSPAPER colleagues will not take umbrage if I do some volunteer thinking on my own time about the 1937 Red Sox. I am aware that this is out-of-season thinking of a sort very repugnant to the high idealism in our profession, which requires all practicing journalists to stay in a blissful state of catalepsy between edition times. Your true journalist is very loyal to his ethics and scorns thinking business during rest intervals with the same revulsion that a dry-fly fisherman scorns whipping a trout stream with a garden worm on his hook.

Austen Lake

This is an errand of mercy-thinking, of the kind we sometimes perform for our unfortunate brother authors who have succumbed to their dramatic during the dramatic moments of a World Series. If a fellow worker collapses on his keyboard we run off carbon duplicates of our own essays and file it under his own signature, don't we? Well then.

Just now Eddie Collins, the general manager of the Red Sox, is convalescing more than somewhat from his last season's experience, and still finds any slight thought of baseball causes sensations like frying fat inside his noggin, not to mention gnawing nausea in his vitals like he has swallowed a colony of cockroaches.

ONE MAN THINKING COMMITTEE

NOR CAN ONE JUSTLY BLAME COLLINS, who was through a harrowing summer which induced the same type of nervous shock as was often observed during the World War. I could cite you some pretty pitiful examples of men who, for less reason that Eddie's, came down with the screaming meemies and began thinking of themselves as wood-ticks, lizards and even worse.

So Collins does not wish to risk thinking about the Red Sox [illegible] early December when he will venture some light, defensive [illegible] grade of [illegible]. Just [illegible] Collins to think. A fellow shouldn't [illegible] conduct his own creature [illegible] matters, so I will assume the chairmanship of a one-man thinking committee to think some of what as follows.

I would advise Jimmy Foxx, the heavy duty first baseman, that, since I am paying him upwards of $20,000 for two hours' work every afternoon for five months, I am expecting a dollar value in energy and a batting and fielding display commensurate with that rate of pay.

I WOULD SQUIRT PERIODIC INJECTIONS of carbohydrate or starch solutions into Joe Cronin's managerial arteries to stiffen his resolve and enable him to clout down on all sleepers, mutineers and sulky stars, and hire a husky barroom bouncer to back him up and save wear and tear on his knuckles.

I would start the 1937 Southern training with a printed table of [illegible] and I would [illegible] them to a [illegible] Collins [illegible] Supervised [illegible] Tom from [illegible] Schedule [illegible] the intensity [illegible].

I would [illegible] men would [illegible] services [illegible] and [illegible] Quinn's regime [illegible] same gent.

PROMOTE JOE TO BE BENCH BOSS

I WOULD PROMPT CRONIN TO LET such eccentrics as Bill Werber, whose impulsive behavior has been a cockle-burr under the club's shirt, understand that docile workmanship, minus nervous tantrums, is expected—or else. Though on second though this is unnecessary, because in the near by and by the club will find a kind-hearted owner of some adjacent team to give Billy a good home, whence he will come at times and do his utmost to whack the ears off his old Fenway varsity.

I would shun industrious[illegible] during the next few months for some reason [illegible] the team a [illegible] Collins [illegible] brilliant [illegible] He is too nice a guy [illegible] the [illegible].

These are just a few [illegible] Collins can have for two cents a copy. I am no [illegible] I don't own any ball club. And besides I [illegible] get rid of them to make room for more ideas.

NO. 13 PROVES UNLUCKY FOR PRINCESS HERODEME

The superstitious person has a chance to say "I told you so," after viewing the above photo and learning the outcome of this race. Princess Herodene, running at Hawthorn Hill, England, fell at the first jump and, though the jockey escaped, the horse broke its neck and had to be destroyed. The moral of the picture being "stay abed on Friday the 13th."

EAGLE'S Coach Warns of B. U. THREAT

Boston College will open up with practice at its command against Boston University next Saturday at Fenway Park, according to Coach Gilmore Dobie who affirms that that is the only way the Eagles can defeat a team like Pat Hanley's powerful Terriers.

"B. U. has a big strong team and as it is their final game they will be in there to give us everything they can. All this business of our inviting Hanley Cross is a lot of romance. The only team we are thinking about [illegible] Boston University and I think they will be quite enough after next Saturday, then we will think of Holy Cross."

Boston College will start the same team that it intends to start [illegible].

Frankie Erne, Former Star Of Ring, Advises McLarnin

New York, Nov. 18 (INS)—Frankie Erne, one-time darling of all the world's lightweights, dropped in on Jimmy McLarnin to see him train. Great was Frankie's disappointment when he found that the little Irishman had finished the day's chores and was diving out in the private room at the pioneer gymnasium.

When the two met, Jimmy said: "I've heard so much about you, Frank, it really is a treat to take your hand."

When I watched some of those would-be instructors out there, I had to wonder where the instructors got their learning, Jimmy," began the one-time masterful 135-pounder.

"They teach them to hit from on high whereas we were taught to hit up. We'd fill our lungs, drive up with the blow and it would [illegible] as we [illegible] our man into contact," said Erne as Jimmy shook his head in approval.

MADE MISTAKE

"I made one great mistake in my career, Jimmy. Don't you ever let yourself do it. I agreed to come down from the lightweight division to 128 to fight Terry McGovern. I made 126 pounds in trying to save the forfeit.

"The roof of my mouth was full of blisters, so dry was it from going without water. I told Bob Smith, my trainer and manager, that he'd better go out and get the best odds he could on me stopping Terry in two rounds."

"Why?" asked Bob.

"Because, if I don't get him in two, I'm going to fall down from weakness, and that's just about what happened.

"I'll be seeing you, Jimmy, when you fight Ambers in Madison Square Garden Friday night. He's spotting your weight. That's the cake. You'll win."

Top Row, winner of the $1[illegible] Linda Anita Handicap in the [illegible] of A A Baroni last February, has been entered in the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup, to be run early in March at Hialeah Park. The little five-year-old son of Pompey is out of competition since his victory in the rich West Coast event, probably also will be named for the 1937 renewal of the Santa Anita [illegible] at Arlington [illegible] at Hialeah [illegible] remainder of [illegible].

For the first time since 1932 William Ziegler, Jr., will be represented on the winter turf [illegible] close of the Bowie meeting, he plans to send a powerful string to Miami in charge of Matt Brady. Several of his best will be named for the $50,000 Widener Challenge Cup and the $[illegible] Hialeah [illegible] known as the [illegible].

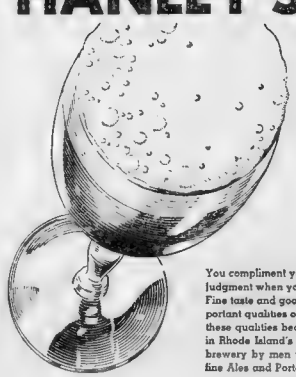
HANLEY'S ALE



You compliment yourself on your own good judgment when you insist on Hanley's. Fine taste and good digestibility are the important qualities of a true Ale. Hanley's has these qualities because Hanley's is brewed in Rhode Island's oldest, yet most modern, brewery by men who have been brewing fine Ales and Porter exclusively since 1876.

CHIEF HARVARD hopes for a victory over the Yales. Those four ads in the upper corner represent the best offensive system the Harvards can muster. Reading from left to right we have: Mutrnan, 10 pounds of dynamite who made the Navy think it had been torpedoed when he tackled it last Saturday; George Roberts, whose booming punts have featured Harvard contests all season, Vernon Struck, the highly effective fullback; Clif Wilson, the best line-backer-upper.

Harvard may not beat Yale at New Haven Saturday—although it is our guess that they will—but they'll invade the Bowl with the fightingest team in Harvard history, equipped with a carefully studied defense for every Eli move.

Eli Tickets Go Fast

The Harvard undergraduate body virtually went for broke these many years ago and was so pepped up by the spirit of the squad that more students are buying tickets for the away-from-home Yale game than they were buying for many of the home games this season . . . that the student body enthusiasm is balloning over is evidenced by the demand for an open practice session before the Yale game . . . and for the first time in years a good old fashioned demonstration meeting is being planned for the eve of the classic

PURPLE Respects HAWKS

EXPECT HARD BATTLE

By WALTER KILEY

A football career, as successful as it has been colorful, ends for Rex Kidd of Holy Cross, at the conclusion of the Purple's games with St. Anselm's and Boston College.

It seems a long time back since Rex Kidd, talented Purple quarterback was barking signals for Harold Pyle at Melrose High, for he was a gridiron, baseball and hockey all-scholastic standout.

Hebron Academy welcomed his athletic prowess and Andover learned to fear him when he led Exeter Academy elevens.

And then he came to Holy Cross ... defensive ... ter guard ... a great ... a player ... the grid ... few years ... Or ... Pa ... rest of which led to touchdown positions.

Kicks Goals

Before Judd calls quits to football at Mt. Jones, he is anxious to make a clean slate over a period of his three varsity years against St. Anselm's and the Hawks. Judd has been a great quarterback, one of the finest of all time at Worcester.

Joe Sheketski, backfield coach and chief scout, sat in on the Hawks' game at Manchester, N. H., last Saturday. What he told Coach A...

Sheketski makes claim that the Hawks are as hard hitting, as savage tackling and blocking a team as can be found in this western humisphere.

Then there's always O'Donnell's great urge to return to Worcester and show up his former Brothers.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

A CANDID CAMERA AT THE THEATRICAL CLUB last night would have caught Harry Havenor, the New York financier, Ann Shaw Granlund and Ann Corio in a huddle around one table . . . Havenor has never taken a fling at show business . . . Granlund, who abbreviates his billing to N. T. G., is the most amazing fellow around the motion-picture palaces of late . . . Flippant and informal, the one-time reporter, press-agent, radio-announcer draws grosses that are staggering . . . He will have attracted over $30,000 for an eight-day stay in Boston when he concludes his visit tonight . . . Miss Corio holds an unique position in her own field, burlesque. She is the outstanding personality of the once flourishing business, and the only performer whose appearance is a guarantee of profits whether it be the Old Howard in Boston, the Drury Lane, Louisville; the Miles Royal in Akron, or the Garrick, St. Louis. (The burlesque houses have swell names) . . . Havenor is interested in Granlund, and Granlund is interested, from strictly a business standpoint, in Miss Corio . . . The nub of it is that a deal is on . . . For more big business, this column takes pleasure in printing for the first time some news that Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, withheld from the press-release of his experiences abroad forwarded to the newspapers . . . He left New York on the Bremen. Four years ago she was the "Queen of the Seas." Twelve hours later the Queen Mary left New York, and three days later the Queen Mary passed the Bremen at a fine clip. The passengers then saw the Hindenburg on the horizon on her western voyage, the speed king (or queen) of them all . . . Wadsworth got to thinking about speed in transportation, and passenger-ships in general . . . He visited with the chief engineer of one of the British lines. He guarantees the news that a liner is now under construction which the British think will rule the waves for years and years to come . . . The Queen Mary, he was told, was designed eight years ago, and is considered already out of date.

Christmas Is Coming, or Is It?

Also with the Granlund party in its trot around the town was the beautiful gal he calls "Unconscious." Her name is Bonny Claire. "What with having been in England for some time, 'unconscious' is not too bright," the showman explained. "Occasionally, she seems half-smart. We were playing in Cincinnati on Halloween. They make a big fuss over Halloween in Cincinnati. As Bonny left the theater they threw confetti all over her and blew horns in her ear and scared her with masks.

"She was breathless when she banged into my office. "'I didn't know it was New Year's,' she panted. Then, out of breath, she paused. I was about to tell her that it wasn't New Year's yet, when Bonny with the most baffled expression you ever saw, asked me: "Tell me, Granny, what became of Christmas?"

Once Over Lightly:

The A. B. C. commission has made no ruling yet on the paragraph in the regulations having to do with sterilizing tavern-glasses at the boiling-point, with approved washing appliances

For Your Entertainment:

The new show at the Cocoanut Grove is more than pleasing. Out of vaudeville for a first swing around the nightclubs have come Jane Francis and Joe Carroll. She is the girl who resembles a rag-doll in her studied pliancy . . . Edith Carroll and Ken Lane, another dance-duo, tap to swing-time with a dash of comedy, and they are excellent . . . The Gaylene Sisters, statuesque and shapely, are the "kicks" in posture-dancing, and Lew Conrad's music and Mimi Parkes' singing make the entire attraction something highly worth a dinner or supper or evening . . . The Club Mayfair is holding over Larry Thornton and Adrienne Andre, which takes care of the vocalizing department very, very nicely . . . The tap-dancer, John Godfrey, couldn't leave the Club Mayfair floor without three encores last night, and among those applauding were John Roosevelt and a lovely brown-haired young lady . . . It may not happen while The Show Is On is playing Boston, but the report is that Hal Le Roy is going to join the revue.

5 A.M. BULLETIN—Ann Corio just signed with N. T. G. to leave burlesque . . . for one week only she will play Loew's State Theater in New York.

Directed by HOWARD HAWKS and WILLIAM WYLER • Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

Packed with tense, gripping moments of overpowering drama...tender scenes of heart-rending romance...against a setting of the most heroic days America ever knew—the sprawling, brawling era when a mighty empire of timber was wrested from the grudging trackless forests of the great northwest...More thrilling than Edna Ferber's "Cimarron"; more appealing than her "Show Boat" is her story of a woman and the man she dared not love—of a man and the souls he could not conquer.

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Here's a story I'm crazy about. It came in a letter from Rachel Kaylor of Brooklyn, N. Y. And Mrs. Kaylor writes: "I am only an old lady now, and my happiest adventures consist of holding my grandchildren on my knee, but many years ago I really had an exciting adventure. Maybe you read of it, because the newspapers made quite a heroine out of me then. And President Theodore Roosevelt wrote me a letter of which I am very proud.

Well, sir, Mrs. Kaylor may be proud of Teddy Roosevelt's letter, but on the other hand, Old Teddy ought to have been proud to know a woman like Mrs. Kaylor.

Do you remember those old fire-trap tenement houses, Mrs. Kaylor wants to know. And she goes on to tell of the days, back in the spring of 1905, when young Rachel Kaylor and her husband lived on the fifth floor of one of those tenements with their twin babies.

"The babies," she says, "were the cutest boy and girl you ever saw. The rooms were dirty and tiny, but we didn't care. We were so happy."

Rachel's husband had a night job with the street car company. And one dark, terrible night Rachel, alone in the [illegible]

I opened the door [illegible] almost fainted then and there. The hall was a blazing [illegible]

LEWIS HANEY ON BUSINESS

Country Demands

ROOSEVELT CONSERVE

Prosperity Gains

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Nov. 18—The spectacle presented by some business leaders, kowtowing to the President and trying to get aboard the band wagon (after it has passed), is not pleasant.

The latest "move" to talk up employment is sort of childish. It puts business on the level of politics.

* * *

If Roosevelt were still the quarterback on an attacking team, the thing might seem different. Such, however, is not the case. He himself announces prosperity is here. Thus, depression is defeated, and the game is won.

What does the signal caller do when the team has the game in hand? Certainly he does not start to heave passes. He plays safe, stays on the ground and holds the ball.

The President has assumed the responsibility of maintaining prosperity. This, in itself, requires different tactics.

The country will demand that the gains made be held, and not be jeopardized by new experiments. As they prosper, people will want to conserve prosperity.

Probably this is realized by the President himself. Certainly he has been sending up trial balloons trying to find out the way the wind blows. Now he sails away on a battleship.

* * *

As one looks back at the campaign, only one general commitment seems to have been made by the President and that as some sort of central government control over business.

He was charged with waste. He defended his spending as being helpful in an emergency. Now the emergency is past. He promises a balanced budget.

He was charged with aiding and abetting Communism. Though not very specific, he went out of his way to deny the charge.

But when he was charged with "regimentation" through such schemes as the National Recovery Act and plans to change the Constitution, he made no reply. He refused to deny the charge. He said he would go ahead.

May we not, therefore, infer that further developments in the direction of federal control of industrial and agricultural production are in prospect? Would such control not surely lead to attempts at price-fixing?

* * *

Here is where the attitude of these "business leaders" who are getting aboard is unwise. If they go along with the idea of centralized "planning" and schemes of regimented production, they will go to their destruction as business men.

Overgrown business organizations, monopoly and price maintenance, are the gloves that fit the hands of nationalism and collectivism in politics.

If business men will not compete for business, the politicians will compete for the control of business.

The only justification for business lies in the test of competitive results, as in the determinant of efficiency. If, therefore, business men fall into National Recovery Acts, big or "little," they are done for.

When business comes to be run for the sake of raising prices in order to pay higher monney wages, it ceases to be a reality.

* * *

If a business becomes an overgrown and inefficient bureaucracy, why not let the politicians run it?

That is what the people want to know.

* * *

In my judgment, the only way to keep the New Deal on the track of economic efficiency, is to make business stand, in fact as well as in theory, for economic values that measure free individual choices backed by free individual capacities.

While the President is fishing, let business men cut bait. I mean by that, let them resolve to stick to their own businesses and not enter into agreements, cartels, or other restrictive arrangements where they will be gobbled by a politically dominant labor party.

I believe that if the President finds that business men want to compete, he will not seek to prevent them.

But if he finds that they do not, he will try to saddle them with some National Recovery Act scheme which will substitute politics for business. Why shouldn't he?

FEARS Of Inflation CEASE

REAL TEST TO COME

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1936, Universal Service

New York, Nov. 18 (US)—Up to this juncture, inflation fears have failed to materialize.

The increase in circulating medium has been met by an expansion in the productive output of goods. That has involved substantial recovery and re-employment.

However, as industry approaches capacity, the real test will come. The healthy next step would be a sensible and balanced increase in industrial capacity through new investment.

If industry does not proceed in this direction, then the potentially large supply of circulating medium may be used to compete for a limited quantity of goods and result in a severe inflationary bidding up of prices.

There are several superficial deterrents to new investment. The restrictions under the SEC make directors think twice before accepting liabilities. Secondly, and more pertinent to this discussion, the new punitive undivided profits tax puts a special burden on companies seeking to get out of debt. Hence there is reluctance to do our debt. If the law is not amended, the escape may perhaps be along the route of common stock financing.

Ordinarily, a primary source of funds available in new plant and equipment would come from direct corporate savings—from the excess of net income over the funds distributed to owners in the form of dividends. But the new tax law places a huge penalty on such a prudent policy.

* * *

In spite of the obvious difficulties, first, rate managers will have to provide for the immediate legitimate and warranted expansion. They will do so as their aim is to the end of the people for higher living standards. To shrink from new investment would be to arrest the process of raising the material well being of the people.

Likewise, failure to increase supply in consonance with demand, would also result in a dangerous inflationary situation.

It may be helpful that expansion must be carried on over obstacles, because too free and easy a trend toward plant expansion would lead to excesses which would pave the way for the next major depression. Prior to 1930, it was too easy for managers to get funds in the capital market.

They borrowed on the assumption that the then prevailing situation would continue, with respect to prices of goods. They tended to overlook the fact that their own plans for plant expansion would tend to increase the supply of goods relative to the demand, and thus help to bring about a price decline which would defeat their own profit expectations.

On the other hand, more canny managers raised higher standards for their construction projects. They insisted on assurances that the proposed new investment would add to efficiency and enable the investing concern to make a profit even if selling prices dropped to the level of the costs of their competitors.

MOTOR Men Reaping BOOM

FIGURES SHOW

By B. C. FORBES

America's motor industry is the most marvelous in the world.

Judging from the events at the New York and other motor shows this month, still greater miracles are approaching.

Imagine one unit of one corporation booking orders of $65,000,000 worth of cars even before its new models were exhibited to the public.

No other industry can match or approach our auto records.

* * *

One out of every eight people gainfully employed in the United States works directly or indirectly in the auto industry.

The total employed directly and indirectly in all highway transportation in the United States well exceeds 6,000,000.

Next year employment in the manufacturing, distribution, servicing and operation of automobiles promises to exceed the 1929 peak.

The auto industry uses more steel than any other—fully 25 per cent of the total output.

The industry's freight bill this year approximates half a billion dollars.

Chevrolet leads the whole world in sales. On one single day 32,500 new 1937 models were delivered to individual purchasers—an all-time record. Yet, after delivering every available car, over 110,000 unfilled orders remained.

In two years 12,000,000 people visited 10,000 Chevrolet dealers. The vastness of the organization's efforts is brought out by the fact that 5,000 service managers and 20,000 mechanics later were instructed on how to present the case to consumers. Schools were conducted over the country for 5,000 retail sales managers and 10,000 salesmen. The wholesale organization conducted meetings throughout the whole land for 8,000 dealers.

Other activities were carried out to train and stimulate 81,500 salesmen and servants even directly or indirectly connected with Chevrolet's 1937 program.

The sales goal for 1937 is 1,200,000 cars.

* * *

Walter P. Chrysler, Byron C. Foy and K. T. Keller state that attendances at exhibitions of the new Chrysler models have broken all records. So have total orders from dealers and the public.

* * *

Ford's new low-priced car has aroused widespread interest. Orders already received are reported millions—Ford is the only important manufacturer not represented in the New York show.

* * *

Everything points to a big auto year.

ELECTRIC POWER INDEX UP

N.E. Shows 8.3 P. C. Gain

New York, Nov. 18 (AP) — The Associated Press index of electric power production, with 1929-1930 taken as 100, advanced for the week ended Nov. 14 to 117.5 from 116.9 the previous week.

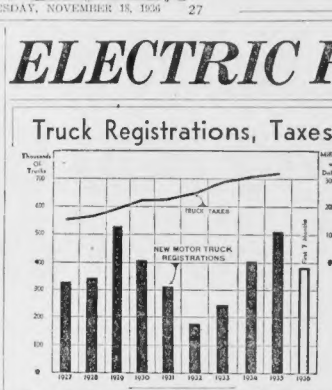
The index, which is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend, stood at 105.3 a year ago.

The range for recent years follows:

	1936	1935	1934	1933
High	117.5	106.5	97.4	91.9
Low	102.0	94.1	91.9	80.2

Edison Electric Institute reported actual production in the United States for the week at 2,169,715,000 kilowatt hours compared with 2,169,480,000 kilowatt hours last week and 1,938,560,000 last year. The gain over last week was slight, .01 of 1 per cent, but was 11.9 per cent higher than last year's output.

The country's major geographic regions showed percentage increases over 1935 as follows: New England 8.3, Middle Atlantic 11.6, Central Industrial 13.8, West Central 8.3, Southern States 18.0, Rocky Mountain 16.0 and Pacific Coast 6.5.



New motor truck registrations in 1935 totaled 510,693 units. This compares with 180,413 trucks registered in 1932 and 327,057 in 1929.

For the first seven months of this year a total of 384,177 new trucks have been registered. Present indications are that new truck registrations this year will top the former peak year of 1929.

Special truck taxes in 1935 provided $329,900,000 in revenue for Federal, State and local governments.

The average tax per truck was $51.50 in 1927 and $80.50 in 1935.

A. T. T. Investigation

F. C. C. SEEKING ADDITIONAL MONEY

UNABLE TO COMPLETE PLANS

Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 18—Unable to complete its investigation of the $6,000,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph Co. with the $1,150,000 appropriated for that purpose, the Federal Communications Commission will ask Congress for $225,000 additional, it was learned today.

The $750,000 originally voted by Congress for the investigation was the largest sum ever set aside for an investigation of a single company. As the money neared exhaustion last spring, the commission asked for and received an additional $400,000.

The latest appropriation will finance the investigation only through February. An added $225,000, the commission is confident, will carry the investigation through to completion by June 30, 1937.

Meanwhile, Paul A. Walker, director of the inquiry and chairman of the commission's telephone division, plans to resume public hearings in the inquiry early next month, it was learned.

Overshadowing the other issues yet to be embraced in the investigation are the financial structure of the A. T. & T., equipment manufacturing costs and charges for bandsets, revenues and operation of toll and leased wire services, and extent of A. T. & T. domination in the motion picture industry.

Paralleling the commission's investigation of the giant telephone combine will be its rate case, instituted some four months ago in an effort to drive down interstate rates.

Commissioner Walker said the commission is yet undecided on whether or not it will permit counsel for the A. T. & T. to cross-examine witnesses during the investigation during the rate case hearing. However, both sides will cross-examine witnesses, the commission said.

A. T. T. Declares $2.25 Quarterly

New York, Nov. 18 (INS)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company today declared a quarterly dividend of $2.25 per share, payable Friday, January 15, 1937 to stockholders of record December 15, 1936.

Copper Stocks Off

World stocks of refined copper decreased 25,200 tons during October, which domestic stocks were off 10,700 tons.

Bar Silver

London, Nov. 18 (AP)—Bar silver easier, ¼ lower at 21¾d. (Sterling price equivalent to 46.47 cents.)

Extra Dividends

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—An extra dividend of $16 a share on the common stock of Coca-Cola International Corporation, which controls the Coca-Cola Company, was added today to the year-end list of corporation disbursements.

A "special" dividend of 53 a share on common stock of the Crown Cork & Seal Co., Baltimore, totaling $1,111,860, was announced today. It is payable December 18 to holders of record December 3.

Comments Of Brokers

From the mince swing viewpoint, lean towards the liquidating side rather than the general purchase side.—R. S. Feigin-Prudence, Blauner & Brady.

The very speed of recent upsurge, together with increasingly large turnover, suggests that the "ceiling is off" for the time being. Acceptance of trading profits heresbouts or on small additional bulges is advocated.—L. D. Comer-Paine, Webber & Company.

With the industrials around previous highs, it does seem advisable for traders to keep in mind the possibility that the market may be making a temporary top or at least that the market may now develop irregularity.—J. S. Wilson-Josephthal & Company.

We believe that last week's decline will prove to have been the forerunner of a more thorough correction of the ground previously gained, before the concluding phase in the upward recovery movement takes place in December.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

Business news generally still justifies a constructive attitude toward the bond market.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate & Co.

We have been of the opinion that a more cautiously bullish view is advisable.—G. M. P. Murphy & Co.

The improved outlook for utilities and other groups is added reason for expecting the main price trend to remain upwards.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

FOREIGN Trade SOARS

BETTER TIMES IN VIEW

By STANLEY CARROLL
Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 18—This nation's foreign trade in the first nine months or the year soared nearly 500 million dollars above that of the corresponding period of last year, according to a report of Secretary of Commerce Roper.

The flow of commerce in and out of the country through September of this year had a total value of $3,498,066,000. This compares with $3,070,045,000 through September of 1935, an increase of $428,021,000.

Though the nation ended the first nine months of this year with an unfavorable trade balance of $33,674,000, Secretary of Commerce Roper sees a strong possibility that exports through the last three months of the year will overcome the present import margin.

Whether or not this occurs, he said, he regards the swelling flow of imports and exports a "healthy sign" of better times. With the position of the United States reversed from that of a debtor to a creditor nation in recent years, he believes, a small unfavorable trade balance should cause no grave alarm.

The latest report of the Commerce Department shows that in the first nine months of this year imports were valued at $1,732,496,000. This compares with $1,568,250,000 in that period of 1935, a gain this year of $164,226,000.

Imports in the first three quarters of this year were valued at $1,765,570,000, compared with $1,501,773,000 in the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 4267,796,000.

Sharp increases in both imports and exports in September are shown. Exports in September of this year were worth $220,143,000, compared with $198,803,000 in that month of 1935, an increase this year of $21,340,000.

Imports last September had a value of $215,645,000. This compares with $161,647,000 in the corresponding month of last year, a jump of $53,998,000.

Fourteen countries with which the State Department has negotiated reciprocal trade treaties are Cuba, Brazil, Belgium, Haiti, Sweden, Colombia, Canada, Honduras, Netherlaed, Switzerland, Nicaragua, Guatemala, France and Finland.

Under the trade treaties in effect, France received concessions on wines, cigarette paper and machine-made lace; Belgium on linen puddings, billiard cloth, hand-made lace, Swedish paper and cloth, fine organdies, cheese and watches; Brazil on coffee and sunganese; Sweden on steel specialties, wood pulp and special feits; Canada on cattle, cobalt and feldspar. Similarly the others received benefits important to their national economy.

In return the United States was granted concessions on such products as cotton, tobacco, sulphur, naval stores, automobiles, office machines, electrical and refrigerator equipment.

The agreement with Cuba has been in effect a little more than two years. In that period the exports from the United States to that country have doubled those of the previous two years.

The first year of this country's trade with Belgium under the present trade agreement has seen American sales to that nation rise 27 per cent over the year before. In the first nine months of our agreement with Sweden, that country's imports of American goods have increased 14 per cent. Haiti took 21 per cent more American exports during the first year of

FRANCE OFF GOLD

Material GAINS ARE Lacking

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

France, six weeks after devaluation, makes an attractive subject for a financial monograph. And it must be admitted at the very beginning the results have been less favorable than expected.

The current bulletin of the Bureau of Business Conditions, division of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, makes it possible by supplying a rather complete resume of the situation.

The reason for the failure of devaluation to appreciably improve conditions in France is traceable to the bulletin's analysis of the situation. Both internally and externally this has conspired to defeat the aims of devaluationists and the hopes of world observers. The aftermath of France's depreciation plunge has been less disappointing that some observers might be inclined to question its success. As this we recall from the conclusions of those in closer contact with the situation than we are. As the result they would lead up to such conclusions we think a brief analysis may prove of real interest.

• • •

Internally the French populace front is seemingly opposed to such industrialists who resist reductions in working hours along with wage increases. Also this element feels that the franc has not definitely been valued and a further reduction is inevitable which accounts for their failure to make recovery stimulating outlays for the production of capital goods. Externally French leaders are plagued by defense needs. Huge appropriations are necessary and these naturally aggravate an already distorted budgetary situation. However, slow increase in business, paralleling the rise in commodity prices, is in evidence.

Notebook: If the French political situation could be ironed out the long attempt of excess capital and the stored up demand for goods working together with the natural resources of the country would soon promote an impressive business recovery . . . So those who want the French franc to prosper before feeling secure in their belief world recovery is with us might consider political developments there . . . With the emphasis on the attitude of the controlling Popular Front . . . Which in this matter is not exactly calculated to make big industrialists happy . . .

• • •

The stock market has behaved about as expected in recent sessions. Some observers have taken it as confirmation of our ideas as an excuse for unrestrained bullishness. Not at this junction. We believe that the present we are going to follow a cautious program—as previously outlined—take advantage of any swift advances to lighten holdings where it looks as though the present said discounted. Values have been adequately discounted. As for new buying suggestions there are none until a real reaction has been witnessed.

• • •

Ticker Tickles: The merchandise and amusements seem to have travelled fast enough and far enough to warrant profit taking sales . . . The one section of the rail group that looks as though it were entitled to a rally on merits is the coal section . . . Utilities do not require the services of an apologist . . . Tape action clearly reveals strong buying that should bring long awaited higher prices . . . The group is the only one left to us at present . . . Because it is entirely possible that if it can get going in here it would lead the other groups on an even keel while they digested their recent upswings.

Traders TAKE Profits

New York, Nov. 18— Stocks stumbled over selling obstacles today after a speedy forward thrust that landed many issues at new recovery peaks with gains of fractions to 2 or more points.

With outpourings of dividends, bonuses and wage increases piling up a record aggregate, financial quarters were still highly optimistic but some traders apparently thought the recent upward surge was a bit too sharp and were inclined to cash in part of their sizable profits. Prices were uneven near the fourth hour.

The buying wave that swept over the list in the morning put the ticker tape as much as four minutes in arrears. The pace slowed on the appearance of more liberal offerings.

The improvement in bonds narrowed. Grains marched ahead while other commodities were a trifle ahead. Items of the dollar, Shares retaining the greater part of their early advances included Westinghouse Electric, Chrysler, Mack, Radio, Kennecott, John-Manville, Southern Railway common and preferred, Sears, Corning, National Biscuit, Thatcher Mfg. common, Type Founders and Sparks Withington.

Rail Waste a Drag on Nation

ECONOMIC RECOVERY provides an opportunity for coming to grips with the neglected problem of modernizing the railroads.

The development of a few streamlined trains with Diesel engines are symbols of what could be attained from a thoroughgoing program of revitalization.

Thus far, substantial progress has been blocked by the anarchy of divergent financial interests.

Individual groups of security holders have been eager to perpetuate needless duplications of service, and have tended to block broad efforts to apply the principles of science and invention to railroading.

For more than fifteen years, private interests have fumbled the opportunity for constructive mergers and consolidations.

At this late day, Thomas W. Lamont, Morgan partner, rises to say:

"It would seem that such consolidations on a large scale, or some pooling of operations, voluntarily initiated by the railways themselves, can provide the only ultimate solution of the American railway problem today."

HOW LONG, MR. LAMONT, SHALL THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WAIT FOR SHORT SIGHTED RAILWAY MANAGERS AND RAILWAY BANKERS TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE IN THIS DIRECTION?

INCREASING numbers are coming to the conclusion that such efforts are unlikely to succeed without leadership from the Federal government.

Not believing that the time is yet ripe for government ownership, Co-ordinator Eastman nevertheless expressed doubt whether large scale consolidation could be effected without compulsion.

As a next step, the co-ordinator made this wise recommendation in his recent address before the Academy of Political Science:

"My thought has been that the (railway) industry should be organized much like the United States so that larger matters of common concern could be dealt with by centralized and concentrated effort, leaving the individual managements a free hand with local matters and the Federal government could lend valuable aid in promoting co-ordination.

". . . Success will go to those who can create new traffic by giving continually better service at lower prices."

This objective presupposes a willingness to discontinue wasteful practices and obsolete and superfluous equipment.

A SYMPATHETIC critic of the rails, Thomas W. Woodlock, former member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in admonishing against economic waste in railroading, once described what a visitor from Mars would think about American railroads. Mr. Woodlock said:

"He would find a good deal of superfluous 'facilities' in the shape of tracks, stations, buildings and rolling stock, even under present conditions of 'competitive' railroading.

"Next he would find a considerable duplication of facilities and services, due to the 'competitive' system of operation.

"An intensive study of actual movements of freight and passengers would disclose to him a tremendous amount of unnecessary movement compared with that which would suffice if all traffic took the shortest or best routes from origin to destination, and these routes were used to the full extent of their capacity.

"Similarly, he would find that the terminals could be arranged so as to dovetail with each other and permit of important economy of movement and therefore of expense."

THE RAILROADS, UNLESS THEY ARE TO BECOME HARDENED ARTERIES, MUST MAKE THESE CHANGES:

Every continuance of waste is a charge against the American public.

Railroad capitalization should be revised in the light of present technology and present competition.

COAST TO COAST SYSTEMS MUST POSITIVELY BE CREATED, WITH LATERALS RUNNING FROM MEXICO TO CANADA.

UNDER such a broad conception, the Federal government, as a part of its re-employment program, could make loans for capital expenditures to railroads which fit into this conception.

THE ONLY ALTERNATIVE IS GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

Theoretically, that would be a short cut to a genuinely national system of efficient transportation, with buses, airplanes, trucks, and even pipelines co-ordinated with the railways.

But the thought of turning over the carriers to political spoilsmen is uninviting.

If nothing short of government ownership will meet the people's needs, then the lines should be leased out to private operators.

But, as an immediate step, management and the regulatory authorities should sit down together to develop a new and efficient transportation pattern.

Federal aid, on a purely business, self-liquidating basis, should be granted to those who catch the vision of better, cheaper and more efficient transportation.

Europe's Deadly 'Peace'

ON ARMISTICE DAY, November 11, the League of Nations, from Geneva, announced that 8,200,000 men are now permanently under arms throughout the world. This includes the 545,000 attached to navies.

Just before the outbreak of the World War there were only 5,900,000, not counting naval units, under arms.

There are today 1,700,000 MORE men under arms than in 1931 and 1932.

It has been estimated that on November 11, 1918, when the war ceased, about thirty million men were in uniform and about ten million were dead, "IN A WAR TO END ALL WARS."

Therefore while the world celebrated—sardonically enough—the triumph of peace on Armistice Day it had under arms ONE-QUARTER the number of those under arms in 1918!

The United States today among all the great powers contributes only an infinitesimal number of armed men to this formidable array of 8,200,000 uniformed men.

Here in America Armistice Day was celebrated as PEACE DAY.

All the speeches that were made were anti-war. The sentiment over our dead was—"THIS MUST NOT HAPPEN TO OUR YOUTH AGAIN!"

CONTRAST the spirit of America—which is a DEFENSIVE PEACE — with the spirit of Europe, which is warlike, and OFFENSIVELY so.

With us there is no vast standing army, no compulsory military service, no rattling of the sword day and night. NO CHILDREN BEING DRILLED IN PUBLIC TO KILL.

Let us as Americans fervently resolve that these things SHALL NEVER COME TO AMERICA.

The Christmas Basket Fund

WINTRY winds and warm fires bring thoughts of Christmas. In every mind there is forming a plan for a merry, joyous holiday for self, for family and friends.

But Christmas is more than a day for the mere exchange of gifts and good wishes. It is an occasion for universal happiness, for general celebration.

That is why the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund is off to an early start. Much has been done in the past. Many times as much must be done this year, in the days between now and December 25.

Planning his Christmas budget, every reader should set a little money aside for the friendless, unfortunate poor of Boston and New England. The amount, be it a thousand dollars or a dime, will be his best contribution to the Yule season.

For, like a modern Star of Bethlehem, it will bring light and gladness into humble homes, such as the one 1936 years ago Christ chose for his own.

Justice Brandeis

WITH attention focused more closely than ever on the U. S. Supreme Court, the nation joined last week in congratulating Associate Justice Louis Denbitz Brandeis on the occasion of his 80th birthday. It was fitting, indeed, that the day found America's leading liberal jurist as deeply engrossed in legal problems as when he first ascended to the bench.

America wishes him many more years of health and service.

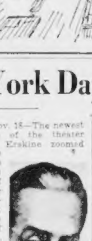
New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre



O. O. McIntyre

New York, Nov. 18.—The newest wonder biddie of the theater since Chester Erskine zoomed briefly on the horizon seems to be Orson Welles—out of Kenosha by way of Chicago—and just 21. His parents are friends of mine. As a prank one who named him and kept a practiced eye on the lad's upbringing.

While in prep school Welles became a rumbaway to Ireland and filched his way into a theatrical role in Dublin, and the deception turned out so well he began playing with the famous Abbey Players. He was then hovering 4 16.

Returning to America he introduced one of the first middle west stock companies. Here Thornton Wilder came upon him and suggested him for the role of Mercutio in Katharine Cornell's road show. In the interim he directed a Harlem Hamlet, wrote a book and several radio scripts.

He skyrocketed into the New York scene by writing, producing and directing the shortlived nonsence, "Horse Eats Hay." While doing this he rehearsed a Sidney Kingsley play, in which he played lead. The flukie, always skeptical, expects him to be top man in another five years.

A recent New York visitor was the dean of game inventors, George Parker. He's been watching and inventing games for 50 years. From him one learns all game crazes have peak sales for two years—no more, no less. This has been true from Tiddledywinks and Crokinole at the turn of the century to Mahjongg, the recent No. 1 craze. Pitt, Rook, Flinch and Ping Pong had two years of Europe apiece in the early 90s and so did Mah Jongg. Backgammon and the Ping Pong craze have been the only decent of a game depends on simplicity.

One notices on Madison Avenue a sign: "Dressing for Golfers Only." A polished exponent of the golf tailoring art is Grantland Rice. He is something of a relief from the stock gaudiness. During a tournament he appears in something newish daily, but in nothing to shake the spectrum. Usually plain gray, dark blue, autumnal tan. Fontaine Fox also shows sartorial golf restraint.

Newspaper experts on golf are not the usual brisk types of the editorial shops. They are a composite of the fellow you expect to see—and usually do—standing placidly with hands in pockets on the station platform at Marceline, Mo., yet fitting that dandy Burns Mantle simile: "As alive as steam."

Somehow they thread a dry crackle of alfalfa humor through their stuff. Especially did I smile at what one said about the veteran shooter, George Voigt. George made a miserable showing against Jock McLean—what a perfect golf name!—and came in one day something like eight down.

The golf writer described him as a Wall Street man, and in reviewing the still later play-by-play he served: "Voigt was off more than an eighth today."

The ladies who look on, of course, offer a colorful splotch at a golf tournament. At Garden City this fall there was one Carole Lombard looking stunner who strolled out on the course in the late afternoon wearing an extremely diaphanous creation. She contrived to get between the setting sun — and the gallery switched to her. As she moved forward three steps—a hundred fellows moved forward three steps. Until, in a sudden jet of self consciousness, she fled.

Here's a name copied from a restaurant window on Staten Island—not a great way from the ferry slip—Przybyszweski. That's throwing a ladle of alphabetical soup across the counter with a swish. Yet I'll venture the pronunciation is as simple as you please. On the outskirts of Flagstaff, Ariz., some years ago there was a roadside house called Skeet's. It was spelled Zewzyzhi.

Shaving Mirror Ruminations: During the depression the majority of quitters were tall, handsome men, dependent on appearance for success. The undersized who had to hustle all their lives quit last and came back first. The little fellow thought it out, the big fellow cried it out.

As I mature and glance in the mirror I am increasingly grateful my vocational urge did not veer toward playing Shakespearian roles or athletic championships—what with requiring tights and track suits I must quit squinting. It's that and not the years that brings those crows feet.

Television in Politics

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

Judging from current announcements, it seems quite possible that television, in the presidential election of 1940 will be a great factor. Radio already has profoundly altered the terms and requirements of political campaigning. What further revolution may we expect when a candidate stands not only within hearing but within sight of millions?

Will it tend to de-bunk politics and put candidates on their merits, or will it merely increase the advantage of the finished and plausible actor?

Will it provide the electorate a sharper and more objective appraisal, or will it expose it further to crowd hypnosis and studied histrionics?

"I vote for men rather than issues." Most of us have echoed this home-spun sentiment, some time or other. This attitude becomes more general as government becomes more complicated. In pre-Civil War days, there was lusty drawling at every cross-roads over issues which were simpler then. It was true down to Bryan's day.

The "Coin's Financial School" pamphlets, treating of that murky and forever confusing subject of currency, were wolfed by millions of plain people who, when mus aroused, followed their intricacies with amazing penetration.

WHAT BRYAN MISSED

What would the result have been had 50,000,000 or 60,000,000 voters actually heard and seen Bryan deliver that "Cross of Gold" convention speech? Would the tumultuous drama of the moment and the enchantment of Bryan's matchless voice filter through the radio television and radio gadgets, without loss in translation, bringing to his feet with a yell the lonely squatter in a Kansas sod house or the tailored denizen of a New York penthouse?

Trying to understand the issues of a municipal, state and national campaign is appalling for all of us who have to keep working hours and can't put in night and day shifts—that is, studying finance, industry, agriculture and economics with a personal faculty of professors and actuaries. That's about what it comes to, if you want really to know what you're voting for.

So, naturally, it is understandable that government should become more highly personalized and that the personal, dramatic appeal to take this or that action should be accentuated in our up-to-the-minute democracy. And what-the-well-dressed - candidate-will-wear will become tremendously important when we get television in full flicker.

"ABE" DIDN'T ARE.

These quibbles about machine-age politics may touch on something critical and urgent, and then, against a wider back-drop, they may take on a different look. I've just been browsing through Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln" again. It makes our experiment in self-government look a lot more durable than hopeful.

Slick, big-time politicians made fun of gangling old Abe's country clothes. He was the cartoonist's delight. His advisers implored him to dress up, but he didn't get a new suit or pay any attention to them. After he was nominated, however, he did get a new suit, in a manner described in the Springfield (Ill.) Journal of that day, as follows:

"We had the pleasure of inspecting the magnificent suit of clothes which has been in course of preparation for Mr. Lincoln since his visit to Chicago. It is manufactured by merchant tailors in Chicago and consists of a fine coat, pants, vest and cravat. The coat is of the best cloth that can be bought in this country and made up with a taste and in style that cannot be bought in any country.

"The pants are of the best and finest black cassimere; the vest of the finest grandiere silk and lined with buff goods of the same kind. The whole was presented to Mr. Lincoln, 'Te Hon. Abraham Lincoln from A. D. Titsworth, Chicago, Ill.', which is beautifully worked on the inside of the coat collar."

Old Abe might have put on his new cassimere pants for a television appearance and then again he mightn't. It wouldn't have made much difference. And maybe it won't, even in the age of television, when another Abraham Lincoln comes along.

"Between I and You"

By Winston Norman

Just between I and you, it looks like this Pan American Peace Confrince is the best idea our Govt. ever thunk up. I hope it will learn Jimmy Hoffa-alaw Jake a good lesson. Jake has always claimed there is only 2 kinds of Peace—before a war, and after a war.

The trouble is that Jake got spoilt the Last War, on account his flat feet was excuzed from action. "I should worry about a Next War," says Jake. "I got the same pair of feet that stayed home with me in 1917."

"But they won't do you no good next time," I says. "Modern airplanes will bring the Next War and drop it on your front stoop, no matter what kind of feet you are warcing."

"If such such is the case," says Jake, "I better begin wzeing my head instead of my feet."

Jake uzed his head fer a minnit, and then he says, "How would it be if everybody was a General in the next war?" he says. "50 milion Generals would fight it out on the telefone, 'way behind the Lines, and nobody would get hurt."

Well, Baker's idea is alright, but the best plan is what the U. S. A. is doing right now. We are keeping ourself in shape, and Joe Louis, and when a forrin nation shakes us by the right hand, they know we got our left hand ready just in case.

We wasn't so smart back in 1917. Our diplomats was like the Misionarys which went out to save Indians in the jungles of Brazil. Two out 2 missionarys up the river, without no side arms, to tell the Indians about Peace. Neither of them come back, so they figgered the Indians was being saved.

Purty soon they sent another Misionary up the river. He was a kind of skinny Misionary and 5 days later the Indian Chief bring him back in a canoe. "M no wantum," says the Chief.

"For goodness sake," they say, "what is the matter with him."
